Haldeman, Ehrlichman

Aides to visit prosecutor

By BROOKS JACKSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Outgoing White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman are scheduled to visit the Watergate prosecutor today, various sources report.

Later the two are scheduled to meet investigators from the Senate Watergate committee on some "neutral ground" belonging neither to the executive nor legislative arm of government, a source said. That meeting could come later today, but sources give differing accounts of the timing.

The developments come amidst reports that the two face possible indictment for their role in an alleged White House coverup of the Watergate wiretapping.

Haldeman, White House chief of staff, and Ehrlichman, President Nixon's chief domestic adviser, have resigned. And Wednesday the White House effected a realignment of responsibilities. Staff veterans will fill their vacancies temporarily, sources said. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was given an expanded role in forming domestic policy, the White House announced.

Meanwhile Wednesday, the Justice Department cited the Nixon campaign for failing to report a secret $200,000 cash gift from accused mutual-fund looter Robert L. Vesco.

The committee, which could be fined $3,000 on the alleged violation, denied it had broken the law. It also noted that Vesco's money was given back to him after the Securities and Exchange Commission sued him for siphoning $224 million from four overseas mutual funds.

The Justice Department didn't accuse any individuals of wrongdoing in its three-part information filed in federal court.

The Nixon campaign already has paid an $8,000 fine for failing to report money paid from a secret cash fund used to finance the Watergate bugging. No individuals were accused in that case either.

Government auditors have told the Justice Department of two other cases of apparent financial violations by the Nixon campaign, and have recommended prosecution of Hugh Sloan Jr., the former campaign treasurer. Action is pending.

The Watergate grand jury heard two key witnesses Wednesday. Former Nixon campaign deputy Jeb S. Magruder appeared for what is thought to be his first testimony since the scandal broke open. And E. Howard Hunt Jr.—already convicted, sentenced and given immunity from further prosecution in the case—was brought from his jail cell in handcuffs for a repeat appearance.

Hunt testified for about two hours, and didn't speak to newsmen. Magruder testified for three hours, and said later he answered all questions without being granted immunity.

In another development Wednesday, Egil "Bud" Krogh took sudden leave from his own job as No. 2 man in the Department of Transportation. Krogh, 38, had been an aide to Ehrlichman at the White House, and was boss of the White House news-leak-plugging team when two of the group allegedly burglarized the office of a psychiatrist who had treated Daniel Ellsberg, defendant in the Pentagon papers trial.

A spokesman said Transportation Secretary Claude Brinegar telephoned Krogh when Krogh didn't show up for work Wednesday morning.

Brinegar urged him to answer newsmen's questions about the Ellsberg burglary, but granted a few days of personal leave after Krogh asked for time off.

In other Watergate developments Wednesday:

• Sen. George McGovern, last year's Democratic presidential nominee, said he believes Nixon's denial of involvement in the Watergate wiretapping, supports his efforts to "restore his leadership," but resents a reference by Nixon to "campaign abuses on all sides."

• The Senate Watergate committee, meeting behind closed doors, decided to go ahead with public hearings starting in mid-May. But it failed to decide whether to grant anyone immunity from prosecution or to decide what subject to take up first: political espionage or illegal campaign spending.

• The Senate let stand its action of Tuesday in adopting a resolution urging Nixon to appoint a special Watergate prosecutor with no ties to the administration. Some Republicans viewed the resolution as a vote of no confidence in Nixon's handling of the case.

• Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott denied telling Nixon that some GOP senators were talking of retirement unless the Watergate scandal were cleared up. The Chicago Sun-Times had written that Nixon began his own Watergate probe after hearing that assessment from Scott and House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford.

• The Washington Post quoted executive-branch sources as saying Watergate conspirators E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy had supervised the wiretapping of at least two New York Times reporters investigating the Pentagon papers in 1971.

House committee may try to halt war spending

By JIM ADAMS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic efforts in Congress to reject the Nixon administration's $150-million request for Indochina military operations including bombing over Cambodia focused on the House Appropriations Committee today.

Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo, D-N.Y., said his amendment against the war-spending authority in a supplemental money bill would not cut off money for Cambodia, but would deny approval of it by Congress.

"What they're looking for is a stamp of approval for what they have done and what they may do," Addabbo said.

The committee is expected to approve the bill today. Addabbo said he will take the fight to the floor when the measure comes up, possibly next Tuesday.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., said he would introduce today a resolution declaring it the sense of the Senate that "any actions by the United States armed forces in, over, or off the shores of Indochina are" contrary to the Constitution.

He planned a Senate speech declaring that continued bombing risks "breeding a whole new generation of American prisoners of war."

Nixon to meet with Pompidou late in May

PARIS (AP) — President Nixon will meet President Georges Pompidou of France in Iceland at the end of the month, informed French sources reported today.

The two presidents are expected to meet May 31 and June 1, the sources said.

A communique is to be issued in Washington and Paris later today giving the plans for the meeting.

Previous announcements from Washington have said that Nixon and Pompidou would meet but that the time and place had not been fixed.

Scandal aiding Congress in trying to retake power

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — In its struggle to reclaim powers from the White House, Congress may have unwitting and ironic allies in the men who created and tried to hide the Watergate scandal.

For the trauma of Watergate could become a pivotal point in the long controversy over presidential and congressional prerogatives.

That issue was drawn clearly as Nixon's second term began amid disputes over the impoundment of funds, the dismantling of programs approved by Congress, and the power to make war.

In each case, the White House took charge while congressional critics protested.

Those matters have been submerged now in the Watergate, with continuing disclosures and charges of 1972 campaign wrongdoing.

But the broader questions will recur, and when they do, it will be far more difficult for a shaken administration to argue that disputed powers should be gathered to the President and his top aides.

And it will be impossible for them to argue, as John D. Ehrlichman did earlier this year, that one-man rule is proper and necessary.

Hours after Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman resigned as two of his top aides, Nixon told the nation Monday night that Watergate demonstrates the operation, not the bankruptcy, of the American political system.

"It was the system that has brought the facts to light and that will bring those guilty to justice," the President said.

But an operating system created by the President and his aides permitted Watergate to happen and, by Nixon's account, to be shielded from him for nine months.

That was a system long on presidential and staff authority, short on congressional and Cabinet consultation. Politically, as the President reported, it was a system that delegated authority for his 1972 campaign.

Nixon has spoken repeatedly of dispersing power from "bureaucrats in Washington," and returning it to the people.

"The concentration of power can get to be a dangerous habit," the President said last Oct. 21.

Pentagon Papers trial

Mistrial motions will be heard

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Pentagon papers trial judge has directed attorneys to give him legal briefs today on dismissal and mistrial motions and raised the possibility that the case may never go to the jury for a verdict.

U.S. District Court Judge Malt Byrne said he will not allow jurors to begin deliberations until he probes all facts about a burglary of the office of codefendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist and alleged White House involvement in prosecution of the case.

Byrne also demanded that the government give him more details about the alleged roles of Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt Jr. in the burglary and in a special White House investigation of the leak to news media of the Pentagon papers.

Ellsberg and Anthony J. Russo, both former researchers on government projects for the Rand Corp., are charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft for copying the Pentagon papers, a top secret study of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Byrne says he wants more information on the Liddy-Hunt operations in order to determine whether those actions interfered with the defendants' constitutional rights to a fair trial. Byrne has expressed fears that "tainted evidence" obtained from the Liddy-Hunt work might have been used in the prosecution.

Byrne has stressed an urgent need to find out what papers were found in Hunt's White House office and safe when they were searched by the FBI. But the only documents surrendered by the government Wednesday were three FBI reports on recent interviews with White House aides John D. Ehrlichman, H. R. Haldeman and Bruce Kherli.

Ehrlichman's interview added only sparse details to a previous interview. Haldeman and Kherli professed no knowledge of Hunt's and Liddy's role in any White House probe of the Pentagon papers case or Ellsberg. They also said they don't know where reports from a probe might be.

Ehrlichman, in his second FBI interview since reports of the 1971 burglary surfaced last week, said he believes "there must be papers covering investigation of Daniel Ellsberg" by Liddy and Hunt.

Ehrlichman said in an interview made public Tuesday that he knew about the psychiatrist's office burglary and of Liddy and Hunt's effort to produce a psychiatric profile of Ellsberg to show the defendant had "moral and emotional problems." Ehrlichman said the conspirators worked for the White House at the time.

Of the latest interview with Ehrlichman, conducted Tuesday, the FBI reported, "It has been over a year . . . since Mr. Ehrlichman has seen anything on the Pentagon papers investigation . . ."

"Mr. Ehrlichman maintained a newspaper clipping file on the Pentagon papers case which he kept in a file cabinet. This file has since been sent to the President's file, however, and Mr. Ehrlichman assumed the material was now in 'archives.'"

The FBI said Ehrlichman told them that the investigation of the Pentagon papers was handled out of the office shared by Egil Krogh, a White House assistant, and David Young, a National Security Agency employee.

"Mr. Ehrlichman did not know the whereabouts of what Krogh, Young, Hunt and Liddy produced as a result of their investigation," the FBI report said.

The FBI agents said Ehrlichman complained to them about disclosure Tuesday of information he had given the FBI.

The FBI report also quoted Ehrlichman as saying he knew of no probes concerning Russo, but had seen FBI reports on Ellsberg's wife, Patricia, and on New York Times reporter Neil Sheehan, whose paper published excerpts from the Pentagon papers in June 1971.

Ellsberg's attorney, Leonard Boudin, accused the government of dragging its feet in providing needed data.

"This is a parody of an investigation. This is a joke," said Boudin, who has asked repeatedly that the Watergate principals be ordered here to testify.

Heavy rains ending

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Weather forecasters predict that recent heavy rains in the Midwest are to end today but warn that new crests on the upper Mississippi would result in continued flooding in Southern areas.

A "tranquil" weather picture for the Midwest through Sunday afternoon should allow the Mississippi and its tributaries to recede slightly, the National Weather Service at St. Louis, Mo., said.

No new crises were reported in the seven-state flood area.

The service reported Wednesday that the Mississippi at Winfield, Mo., about 75 miles up-river from St. Louis, would rise only about a tenth of a foot by Saturday because of the runoff from the rains in Iowa, northern Illinois and northern Missouri.

Forecasters farther south say they expect the river to stay within its banks. But with the Mississippi so high, its tributaries are backed up and creating flooding where the levee system is weak.

The crest of the Mississippi flood should pass Cairo, Ill., today at 55 feet, river forecasters said.

Over-all, the floods have resulted in 11 deaths, put an estimated 11 million acres under water and caused more than $300 million in damages to crops.

The latest estimates indicate that more than 24 million acres are under water in Louisiana alone.

An estimated 35,000 persons are homeless in seven states—Arkansas, Louisiana, Wisconsin, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois and Mississippi.

"We have so much water stored in tributaries and on farmlands upriver that it will be very slow draining," said a spokesman at the river forecast center outside New Orleans, La.

"Under the most favorable weather conditions, the best we can hope for is mid-June," he added.

A weather service spokesman said Wednesday the rainfall amounted to up to six inches in Iowa and nearly two inches at places in northeastern Missouri.

The river at Winfield, where flood stage is 26 feet, was at 34.9 feet Wednesday. By Saturday it's expected to reach 35 feet.

At St. Louis, the river reached the 40.4-foot mark Wednesday, more than 10 feet above flood stage. It was to continue receding slowly and reach 37.5 feet by Saturday.

At Memphis, the river is expected to crest Sunday at 41 feet, the third-highest crest recorded there. No new flood damage, however, is expected at Memphis, which is protected by high bluffs.

The main levees along the river are in no danger of breaking, but the crest heading downstream is expected to cause the Yazoo River and its tributaries to back up farther, a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers spokesman at Vicksburg, Miss., said.

FLOOD DAMAGE . . . Heavy damage to Rt. 94 that runs through West Alton, Mo., can be seen as flood workers look over the area. The heavy damage was caused by high waters of the Missouri and Mississippi rivers that gushed through the railroad levee underpass that can be seen in the upper right of the photograph. (AP Photofax)

Indians ask restoration of county as reservation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bills to restore federal services to Menominee Indians were introduced Wednesday in Congress at the request of dissident members of the tribe, Wisconsin congressmen reported.

One of the bills was described by a Republican as a necessary compromise to protect white taxpayers living in Menominee County, Wis.

The request that the county be restored to a status akin to that of a reservation reflects some Menominee complaints about their tribe's self-improvement program.

The tribe converted its reservation to a county in 1961, and organized a corporation to guide economic development. Sales of housing sites to non-

Indians is one of the dissidents' main complaints against the corporation's policies.

Ironically, the congressional measures to restore federal supervision come at a time when dissidents have at last won control of the corporation's board of directors, and the corporation for the first time is reporting profits.

Bills were being introduced simultaneously in the Senate by Wisconsin Democrats Gaylord Nelson and William Proxmire, and in the House by Rep. David R. Obey, D-Wis., and Rep. Harold V. Froehlich, R-Wis.

In a report last year, the Bureau of Indian Affairs said the county's unemployment rate was 26 per cent of its potential work force, and that the average Menominee had an education level of less than the 10th grade.

The BIA said the tribe's economic corporation needs government aid or it will fail. The corporation, which operates a lumber firm, has since reported profitable sales.

The restoration bills were endorsed by several of them, including Rep. Lloyd Meeds, D-Wash., chairman of the House Indian Affairs Subcommittee.

Meeds said he hopes to sponsor a hearing this month in Wisconsin to review comment from the Menominee themselves.

Nelson said his bill would "protect their assets, lands, resources and rights, and provide the basic and necessary community services" to underwrite economic progress.

The approximately 2,500 Menominee are considered the only tribe in the nation to have taken full advantage of self-government offered in a program of termination enacted in the 1950s by Congress.

Obey said his bill would allow Congress to review the successes and failures of the termination policy "dealing with American Indians throughout the country."

The legislation would provide the predominantly white Shawano school district, in which Menominee youngsters are enrolled, to receive special government assistance.

Menominee would be eligible again for Indian health benefits.

Obey sponsored similar legislation a year ago without success. Menominee County has since been annexed to the district represented by Froehlich.

Froehlich describes the Obey bill as a compromise, acknowledging some Menominee object to its modifications.

Compromise is necessary, Froehlich said, to protect non-Indian taxpayers who have purchased housing tracts in the county.

If Congress frees Menominee from having to pay local taxes, the county's non-Indian taxpayers could inherit the responsibility for paying all county services, Froehlich said.

Because of the compromise, there could be a two-year delay in returning land from the Indian corporation to individual Menominee.

The delay would keep all property on tax rolls for a transition period, allowing "us time to permit the state legislature to correct the structures of local government," the freshman congressman said.

Menominee object to the delay, but agreed to accept the measure in its compromised form, Froehlich said.

Deliveries of fertilizer lag in key areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shipments of commercial fertilizer from manufacturers are running slightly ahead of a year ago, but deliveries to farmers are lagging in some important areas, says the Fertilizer Institute.

The industry organization says its index showed a four per cent gain in "domestic disappearance" during the nine months from July 1 last year through March.

"The nation's water-soaked Midwest and southcentral states, however, have the fertilizer industry and agriculture in general tied in knots," Edwin M. Wheeler, institute president, said today in a report.

Midwestern grain farmers use nearly half of the nation's commercial fertilizer. Wheeler said. "The next few weeks will be 'critical' for the industry and farmers, he said.

"Although movement (of fertilizer supplies) to the farm is ahead of last year in several sections, noticeably in the northeast and in several north-central states, it is far behind in the Midwest," Wheeler said.

Scali to receive journalism award

BOSTON (AP) — John Scali, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations since Feb. 1, is being honored by Boston University as a newspaperman, but as a newsman.

Scali, who spent 29 years as a reporter of international affairs before taking up his post as an actor in them, is to receive the Alumni Award for Journalism from the university's school of public communications on May 11.

Probate reform

Widow's right to family car OKed by Senate

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A bill allowing a widow to inherit the family car immediately after her husband's death was approved Wednesday 31-0 as the Senate continued its work on probate reform.

Before approving the bill, however, the Republican-controlled Senate rejected an amendment which would have prevented a surviving spouse from having to inherit debts not directly related to the car.

Democratic Sen. Henry Dorman of Racine had argued a "widow should not have to pay the husband's grocery bill" before gaining title.

Sen. Fred Risser, a Madison lawyer, replied that other bills involved in the legislature's probate-reform agenda would protect the survivor from burdensome credit responsibilities.

Several senators expressed dissatisfaction with the Senate's sluggish pace on probate reform, complaining about prolonged debate.

"Repeat and repeat and repeat," Sen. Everett Bidwell, R-Portage, said. "I think I have heard enough law today to go out and take the state bar examination."

"We are so worried that someone is going to try to transfer semi trucks that we are missing the forest for the tree," Sen. William Bablitch, D-Stevens Point, chided.

Senators finished legislative action on a bill increasing to $3,000 from $1,500 the maximum amount of solely owned property which heirs could transfer by affidavit without having to hire a lawyer.

The bill now goes to Gov. Patrick J. Lucey.

The car bill was one of two probate measures returned to the Assembly because of Senate amendments.

The Senate amended the auto inheritance bill to allow immediate transfer of no more than two cars by affidavit.

During debate on the bills, Republican Sen. Walter Chilsen of Wausau accused Risser of "total falsehoods" and the Democrat accused Chilsen of sponsoring an amendment to give a surviving spouse unfair priority over children in an inheritance.

Democratic Sen. Wayne Whit-tow of Milwaukee joined the protests over the probate complexities.

"They said you wouldn't need a lawyer if this bill were passed," Whit-tow said. "But after what I've heard here today, when I get home I'm going to tell my wife that when I die to go straight to the church minister. He may be the only one who can help."

The Senate passed 31-0 a bill allowing municipalities to pay jointly for publication of annual notices for citizens to burn noxious weeds.

A Republican bill to require that men 16-25 sentenced to more than one year in prison be sent first to the reformatory in Green Bay was tabled in procedural matters.

Boy able to hear after acupuncture treatment

MOUND, Minn. (AP) — Four-year-old Marc Hagen apparently is able to hear words for the first time in his life after undergoing acupuncture treatments for nerve deafness.

Marc and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Budd Hagen of Mound, recently returned from Seattle, Wash., where Marc received 11 acupuncture treatments at Standing Memorial Hospital.

"He's actually hearing words for the first time in his life," Mrs. Hagen said. Hagen said the "improvement is wonderful," but acknowledged that his son's hearing is still far from perfect.

Marc is among a very small group of Americans with nerve deafness whom a few doctors believe they have helped with acupuncture, the ancient Chinese art of sticking needles into patients to treat various conditions. Other doctors remain skeptical of the treatment.

Normally, sound picked up by the ear is sent to the brain through the auditory nerve. When an individual suffers nerve deafness, this nerve does not work right. The idea of acupuncture is to stimulate the nerve to work better.

Dr. V. J. Riegles, who was in charge of Marc's treatment, emphasized that acupuncture in the United States is in an early research stage. "We don't claim any cure-all," he said.

Dr. Riegles said it is not known what percentage of nerve deafness cases such as Marc's might be helped with acupuncture, and he said it is not known if any improvements noticed would be permanent.

But the physician said hearing tests with an audiometer convinced him Marc's gains were real. He added that the boy responded to some spoken words by his mother when he could not see her lips, in a way that it would be "impossible to fake."

Skeptical doctors say some apparent gains reported after acupuncture may be due to improved attentiveness rather than any real hearing improvement.

But Mr. and Mrs. Hagen are very hopeful.

Mrs. Hagen said tests show that Marc, with his hearing aids on, can now hear sounds in the speech frequencies when they are spoken in a "good, strong voice." She said previously tests showed he could hear "absolutely nothing" in the speech range of sound frequencies.

The boy's father said Marc's hearing aids allowed him to hear only very loud sounds before he went to Seattle.

"Marc's hearing improvement should help him greatly in learning things, and we expect his vocabulary to grow a lot now," Mrs. Hagen said.

The Hagens, despite all the cautions and skepticisms of doctors, hope that future acupuncture treatments will improve their son's hearing even more.

State welfare cost aid OKed

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Senate has approved a $427.9 million authorization for welfare and corrections programs over the next two years on a 62-3 vote.

The bill includes two proposals for aiding property taxpayers throughout the state. Under the two plans, the state would take over half the cost of administration of county welfare programs and half the cost of a uniform statewide poor relief program.

These programs now are financed by property taxes. A state takeover would cost $26.2 million, taking an equal amount off property taxes.

The welfare takeover and other tax relief proposals are subject to Senate-House negotiations.

The welfare bill adds 300 new jobs to state hospitals for the mentally retarded, where there has been criticism of patient care.

Of these new positions, 100 would be "locked in," not tied to any possible declines in patient populations.

The Senate measure also authorizes an 18 per cent increase in the food allowance for aid to families with dependent children.

No welfare or correctional institutions would be closed, but the Senate version asks for continued studies on the future role of state hospitals and prisons.

Only votes against the bill came from Republicans Robert Brown, Stillwater, and John Bernhaven, Hutchinson, and DFLer David Schaaf, Fridley.

Brown said the spending plan fails to deal adequately with corrections problems, including a failure to finance regional jail systems.

Governor, Winona to host anglers for fishing weekend

By BUTCH HORN
Daily News Outdoor Writer

A host of anglers will be joining Minnesota Governor Wendell Anderson in Winona this weekend to test their skill on the highly touted waters of the Mississippi River and Southeastern Minnesota's trout streams.

The governor will host 160 outdoor writers and dignitaries at his annual fishing weekend.

FOR THE first time in the history of the event, Winona has been selected as the base of operations. Headquarters will be at the Holiday Inn.

Visitors will begin arriving in Winona Friday afternoon with registration slated at the Holiday Inn from noon until 5:30. A get-acquainted hour will be held there from 7 p.m. until 8:30 p.m., followed by a banquet of Minnesota fish at the Hot Fish Shop.

Friday's activities will allow fishermen to meet with more than 60 local anglers who will serve as guides, and to set plans for Saturday's fishing. Saturday will be a day given to fishing and little else.

FISHERMEN WILL breakfast at the Holiday Inn at 6 a.m. and head for the fishing grounds shortly after. The fishing will be an all-day affair, with a box lunch provided by the Winona Daily and Sunday News.

All fish taken by the governor's party will be registered at the Hot Fish shop before 6:30 Saturday evening. A hospitality hour and banquet will follow the weigh-in deadline at the Holiday Inn.

Glenn Hage, of the Reedley, Calif., Exponent, coming the greatest distance.

LOCAL MEDIA will be represented fully with Don Hopkins of KAGE, Wayne Valentine and Rod Hurd of KWNO, Anne Davis of American Cablevision, the Rev. W. T. McGee of the Winona Courier and Daily News outdoor writer Butch Horn.

Gary Peterson will represent KAUS-TV, Austin, Minn.; Mike Morgan will be on hand from KROC-TV, Rochester, Minn., and Mark Persons will represent KVBR, Brainerd, Minn.

The Twin Cities area will be represented by Tom Aaker, a freelance writer from St. Paul; Tom Ryther, Wally Kamann, Ted O'Brien, and Bill McGivern, KSTP-TV, Minneapolis; Curt Johnson, WTCN-TV, Minneapolis; Jere Smith and Jerry Bronstein, KMSP-TV, Minneapolis; Jack Douglas and Dick Chapman, WCCO radio, Minneapolis; Rob Marr, KSTP radio; Dick McFarland and Dan Dmitruk, United Press International; Gary Dawson, Hank Kehborn, Tom Matthews and Don Spavin, St. Paul Pioneer Press; Joe Hennessey, Bill Hengen and Bob Schranck, Minneapolis Star; Charles MacFadden and Ron Schara, Minneapolis Tribune; Harry Burnham, St. Paul Dispatch; and Dick Hanson, Sun Newspapers, Edina.

JOINING the members of the press will be wildlife artist Roger Preuss of Minneapolis.

In the press group will also be Bud Gorham, KCMT-TV, Alexandria, Minn.; Bernie Lusk, KROC-TV, Rochester, Minn.; Dean Curtis, Judd Jacobson and Bruce Bentley, KDHL radio, Fairbault, Minn.; Cary Moss and Ron Johnson, AAA Minnesota Motorist; David Delaney, Albert Lea Evening Tribune; Ed Dorsey, Fairbault Daily News; Gordy Yeager, Rochester Post Bulletin; Ed Gerchy, St. Cloud Daily News; Tony Sybilrud, Waseca Daily Journal; Bud Olson and Dave Smetna, Great Lakes Publications; Hugo Skrastins, Voyageur Magazine; Gil Hamm and Bob Shoop, Muskegon, Inc.; Ed De Moch, Associated Press, Chicago, Ill.; Cliff Oliver, Chicago Today; John Stetson, Alton, Ill., Evening Telegraph; Bob White, Aurora, Ill., Beacon News; Bob Rankin, Cincinnati Enquirer; John Garwood, Marshalltown, Iowa, Times Republican; Don Muhm and Larry Stone, Des Moines Register; Ole Smedal,

L. Doornkaat, WYCA, Hammond, Ind.; Tim Bothof, KYSM, Mankato; Clare Carroll, Pickwick

Papers, Franklin Park, Ill.; Gene Carlson, WKBT, La Crosse, Wis.; Bob Sequist and Mark Grady, WXOW-TV, La Crosse, Wis.; Barc Wade, Motor Club News, Omaha, Neb.; Bob Junkery, WDSM-TV, Duluth, Minn.; Bill Vint, and Glenn Helgeland, Water Sports Magazine; and Bob Ripley of the Mankato, Minn., Free Press.

HEADING THE list of dignitaries on the governor's day will be local representatives to the Minnesota legislature Dick Lemke and M. J. McCauley, and state senator Roger Laufenburger.

Robert Herbst, commissioner of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, will head a contingent from that department which will include local warden Bill Gannaway and area forester George Hammer as well as Clarence Buckman, Mike Casey, Don Fultz, Hjalmer Swenson, Charles Burrows, Kenneth Anderson and Wally Weltschrek.

The Minnesota Department of Tourism will be represented by Lisa Lebedorff, Jim Gove, Dean Fosdick, Ivan Kubisa, Bob Farinacci, Dave Gailley and James Heltzer, commissioner of the Department of Economic Development. The various sections of the state will be represented as well, with Doyle Sorenson, Joe Rislove, Howard Bailey, Darryl Lee, Don Henke, Ted Ringhofer, Paul Pappas and Virgil Johnson representing Hiawathaland; Jack Rutger and Roy Plankers, Arrowhead; Bill Taylor, Heartland; John Geisler, Metroland; and Jim Ernst and Lloyd Vollmer, Pioneerland. Winona's Mayor Norman Indall will join Winona County Commissioner Len Merchlewitz and a host of fishing tackle and boating industry representatives in rounding out the guest list.

'River tree' basis of regionalism talk

Regions are not objective facts but ideas agreed upon to a greater or lesser extent by a group of people, Dr. Paul Grawe said Wednesday.

He was speaking at a discussion of perspectives on regionalism at the Winona County Historical Society Museum, one of a series being sponsored by the Minnesota Humanities Commission, the College of Saint Teresa, St. Mary's College, Winona State College and the historical society.

"THE ELEMENTAL fact of regionalism is that regions are created in people's minds. We are presently engaged in seeing whether some lines drawn on a map in the governor's office can be made a part of the way people see the world and act in it. If people decide to see regions as divided by rivers, mountains or particular political boundaries, then such regional boundaries will exist," Dr. Grawe said.

He cited Minnesota a state that will be remembered in literature as a part of at least two regions. One he defined as the region of the "river tree," the other dominated by the railroad.

The river tree had its roots in New Orleans and the Gulf of Mexico, then branched upward into all the areas between the Appalachian Mountains on the east and the Rocky Mountains on the west. Throughout the whole region there was a sense of continuity, a sense of common destiny, and a sense of moving southward, particularly for commercial purposes, down to the sea, Dr. Grawe said. The Civil War destroyed the region which was never established.

FOLLOWING THE WAR, industrial America annexed the northeast part of the old river tree. The northwestern part took on a separate character and became a new and separate region dominated by a new form of transportation, the railroad, Dr. Grawe explained.

The northwest became the land of the squeezed and was oppressed under the heel of industrial capitalists. The old western river tree had been a tree of cooperation between older and newer settlements, but the new northwest was at one end of a railroad in a fearful and unequal struggle with what lay at the other end. The region also added to its low self-esteem by accepting the distinction between city slicker and country hick, Grawe noted.

"All of this is now past history. For the last 30 years or more the region has laid aside the image of itself as a railroad-dominated northwest. We still live with many heritages of those times including the railroad and warehouse commissioners now called Public Service Commissioners, dating from the time of grange agitation for reform of railroad abuses. And all of the aspects of our populist, progressive government in the Dakotas, Wisconsin and Minnesota date from these sources," added.

"Today we have become a part of the great American hamburger, a little of a lot of things and nothing very distinctive in particular. Perhaps our imaginations need now some set of lines like the great river tree or the great western railroad to give us a better sense of who we are," Dr. Grawe concluded.

Cochrane man remains on serious list

LA CROSSE, Wis. — Otto Adank, 74, Cochrane, Wis., remains in serious condition in the special care unit of St. Francis Hospital here where he was admitted Monday evening after the car he was driving struck a tree during a heavy rainfall.

His 74-year-old wife, Julia, has improved from serious to fair condition and has been removed from the special care unit.

Adank has chest injuries, possible internal injuries and contusions to the knee. His wife is being treated for head and leg injuries.

The accident took place on Buffalo County Trunk Highway CC at the junction of CTH C near Waumandee.

Winona police investigating vandalism, theft

Winona city police are investigating a theft and vandalism incident reported during the last 24 hours.

According to John Scherer, assistant chief of police, Donald Roessler, 1365 E. Burns Valley Rd., reported that someone had thrown a stone through the window of his home about 9:10 p.m. Wednesday. Damage was estimated at $20.

Ivell Humphries, 1330 W. Wincrest, reported that a five-pound fire extinguisher has been taken from his boat moored at the municipal harbor. The extinguisher was taken between April 21 and Tuesday. No value was given.

1st District caucus

Winonan loses regent bid

An apparent defeat in her bid for election to the University of Minnesota Board of Regents was suffered this morning by Mrs. Alice Johnson, 1306 Conrad Dr., at a caucus of 1st District state legislators.

Mrs. Johnson ran third on a second-ballot vote in which the caucus endorsed Dr. David Utz, a Mayor Clinic urologist from Rochester, for election to the seat being vacated by Dan Gainey, Owatonna, Minn., who is not a candidate.

DR. UTZ, a Republican, received 50 votes to gain the endorsement, while Mrs. Sue Rockne, Zumbrota, Minn., drew 19 votes and Mrs. Johnson, a DFLer, 18.

The legislators customarily accept the nominees of the caucuses from each congressional district.

Senate Majority Leader Nicholas Coleman, meanwhile, posed the possibility this morning that there would be no joint convention of the legislature to elect the four regents.

Coleman said, "DFL senators have no immediate plans to attend a joint convention" in a statement made shortly after the announcement of Dr. Utz's appointment.

IF ELECTED, Dr. Utz would be the third Republican to fill the four regent posts.

In his statement, Coleman, however, did not say flatly that there would be no joint convention.

Shortly after this morning's 1st District caucus, District 34 Rep. M. J. McCauley (R-Winona) said District 34 Sen. Roger Laufenburger (DFL-Lewiston) "and I both deplore the fact that once again a regent has been selected from the city of Rochester. Due to the fact that Rochester has had a regent for 30 of the last 45 years, we think that it's absolutely unfair that Winona again has been left unrepresented on the higher education governing board. The combined votes of Mower and Olmsted counties just could not be overcome."

"We're just plain disgusted. If at any time we deserved representation, now is the time."

Sen. George Conzemius, Cannon Falls DFLer said Dr. Utz received "solid Republican support in the caucus" and also was backed by some DFL legislators from the 1st District.

"He's a Republican," Coleman said of Utz.

The DFLers had a majority in the 1st District caucus but split their vote three ways to pave the way for the endorsement of Dr. Utz.

The 4th District caucus, controlled by DFLers, meets later today and is expected to endorse former GOP Gov. Elmer L. Anderson for another term as regent.

Lauris Krenik, Madison Lake, was endorsed earlier by the GOP-controlled 2nd District to fill the regent's seat being vacated by Dr. Herb Huffington, Waterville.

Incumbent L.J. Lee, a former DFL House member from Bagley, is the choice from the 7th District.

Coleman had talked earlier of overthrowing the district endorsements and allowing the full legislature to pick the regents, which presumably would result in the election of four DFL candidates. DFLers have a 114-87 numerical majority in the two chambers.

Republicans strongly criticized that suggestion.

Coleman said today the election of regents is "very uncertain right now." He said it was "conceivable" that there would be no election this session but added: "I would hope we would have one."

His stance caught House Majority Leader Irv Anderson by surprise. "I don't know anything about it," the DFL floor leader said.

Anderson said House DFL leaders were preparing a resolution to invite the Senate to a joint convention early next week.

Coleman pointed out that there has to be a quorum from both the House and Senate to convene a joint convention. The 37 DFL senators could postpone the session by not attending.

If there is no election by the legislature this session, Gov. Wendell Anderson could appoint successors to Gainey and Huffington if they resign.

MSC president Nickerson quits

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — Dr. James F. Nickerson resigned as president of Mankato State College today. The resignation is effective June 30.

Dr. Nickerson made the announcement at a news conference and said the main reason he is stepping down is to seek a "less hectic professional pace."

He has served as head of the college the past seven years.

His position will be filled by an acting president from July 1 until Dec. 31 when the State College Board will name a permanent successor.

Dr. Nickerson said he wants to stay in the state college system.

Edstrom resigns as band leader

Harold Edstrom has resigned as Municipal Band director for Winona, to be succeeded by Dr. Richard Lindner, band director at Winona State College.

Edstrom has served as director since April 20, 1942. Lindner, 423 Grand St., was appointed by City Manager Paul G. Schriever.

Edstrom's resignation was effective Tuesday. Lindner has been band director at WSC since 1967 and has college degrees from the University of Iowa, Northwestern University and Luther College.

The session will start at 10 a.m. in the social rooms of the Jackson County Bank.

Postal service integral to American way of life

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The U.S. Postal Service is observing National Postal Week. This is the second of three articles of how the postal service is going in Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota.)

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — Mail service has historically been an ever-changing, integral way of life in the United States.

From the once-in-when-ever-it-comes times of the Pony Express to the present six-day-a-week era of jet aircraft, mail service has always been dear to the individual.

In an effort to chop operating costs, the U.S. Postal Service has closed down many 4th class post offices in the initial stage of an apparent huge shakeup. A 4th class post office is the smallest category in the service's categorization system.

The Fargo District of the U.S. Postal Service has closed down 16 offices in the last two fiscal years—10 in fiscal 1972-73 and another 40 are blueprinted for obsolescence in the near future.

The Fargo District encompasses the upper 2.3 of Minnesota and all of North Dakota. "We have approximately 40 4th-class post offices that do not have permanent postmasters," reported Harold Christianson, customer services manager for the Fargo District. "Each will be surveyed and we will attempt to discontinue them or convert them."

Of the 10 offices closed during the last fiscal year, the Postal Service discontinued nine and contracted one. Customers previously served by a discontinued office are now served, in most cases, by a rural carrier.

Under a Rural Contract Branch, communities do not lose their identity. They keep the postmark and zip code, and in many cases, the service is located in the same building.

A contracted office has the same services offered by a post office, but is normally administered by an enterprising small town businessman.

Christianson said the postal service aims to provide its customers with equal or better service than they previously received.

However, assurances by the postal service have not eased the misgivings of many small town residents.

"If you take a post office out of a town, what have you got? A dying town," said Tom Homme of Nashua, Minn.

Homme exemplifies how many small town businessmen will be affected by the impending postal service actions. Homme's wife, Judith, is the officer-in-charge at the Nashua post office branch. The branch office is located in the Nashua Superette, operated by the Hommes, but it would be unlikely they could remain if the postal branch is removed.

Six other post offices in the Fargo District are in the process of being closed. Christianson said they hope to contract services at Barney, N.D., and Graceton, Washish and Mayhew, Minn. The postal service aims to discontinue its facilities at Colgan and Leith, N.D.

River crest revised to 11 feet here

A slight upward revision in the anticipated crest of the Mississippi River here Sunday was announced this noon by the U.S. Weather Service.

Winonans Wednesday had been told to expect a crest of 10.5 feet but the most recent advisory anticipates an 11-foot crest, 2 feet below flood stage.

THE RIVER was at 8.5 feet this morning, is expected to go to 9.3 feet Friday, hit 10.2 feet Saturday and then crest sometime Sunday.

Today's stage was .7 of a foot above the Wednesday reading. The Chippewa River at Durand, Wis., meanwhile, was up 2.7 feet to 10.5 feet this morning and should crest sometime later today at 12 feet, a foot over flood stage.

AT Galeville, Wis., where the Black River was running at 7.7 feet this morning, a 13-foot crest — a foot over flood stage — is forecast for Saturday.

The Root River at Hokah, Minn., was at 48.3 feet this morning and a two-foot over flood stage crest of 49 feet was expected late today.

In 1972 Canada had 47.35 telephones per 100 population.

Warren hits plan to screen cases

NEW YORK (AP) — Former U.S. Chief Justice Earl Warren says a proposal to screen cases before they reach the Supreme Court "is fraught with practical, jurisdictional and constitutional problems of the first magnitude."

A study group appointed by Warren's successor, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, has proposed screening by a seven-judge tribunal to trim the high court's work load.

But Warren told the Bar Association of the City of New York that "in more than 40 years the court has never had a backlog."

"I have abiding faith in the ability of the Supreme Court to Vote on the measure was 31-30.

Spring cleaning— and we can help

This cleanup project on Latsch Island along Old Dike Road was court-directed and when completed it will provide visitors to the area with a much more attractive view.

The cleanup project — and it wasn't an easy one — was the result of a Winona County Court case involving two students charged with removal of government signs. The students were given the option of eight hours work or a fine.

The area obviously has benefitted from their choice. Several tons of debris (photo above) were pulled from a watery grave near the road, the less bulky items bundled into burlap bags and the larger refuse stacked in neat piles to be hauled away.

In addition to the commonplace tin cans and bottles, items hauled away ranged from washing machines, stoves and refrigerators to tires and discarded kitchen cupboards.

Such court-directed projects are becoming more and more prevalent, but that doesn't mean that we should forget to do our part.

Thankfully, many people have recognized the need. Winona Park-Recreation Director Bob Welch says that many groups phone his office seeking the names of areas that need attention or asking about procedures involved in cleaning areas they know of.

The Park-Recreation Department, of course, is quick to accept the help, and just as quick to offer pickup service if hauling the trash to a landfill presents a problem.

Welch has a ready list of areas that need some work. If you are a member of a group looking for a beneficial project, you might consider devoting a few hours in the following places: the hiking trails in Bluffs Park (a job best suited for a group of young people), Prairie Island, Latsch Island and the areas near roadways in other city parks.

Part of the problem, Welch says, is that too often areas become filled with litter just a few days after a cleanup project is held.

Perhaps a two-fold approach is best — first let's work to get it clean and then KEEP IT CLEAN — G.W.E.

The loop collapses

The city has now removed all except one of the "no left turn" situations in its downtown. Loop inaugurated last year. The one remaining is out of Parking Lot No. 1 — at Center and 2nd streets. The others didn't make much sense to the motorists; they were an annoyance, and they were more often disregarded than observed.

So the motorists have won.

The result, however, is that the loop concept in its entirety is dead. Two ideas were involved: 1. to encourage travel on 2nd and 4th streets through the location of strategically placed signs, some of which still remain, and 2. to encourage travel in a clockwise direction through the location of strategically placed "no left turn" signs, one of which now remains.

The loop represented an earnest effort to make travel in the central business district more attractive. It may have been too ambitious, but the intentions were good.

Perhaps, another try can be made when the urban renewal blocks are fully developed. — A.B.

The neglect of First Amendment

Now hear this one, if you care for civil liberties.

Last week a press conference is called to which are invited newspapermen of course, and also television. Because the conference is of particular interest to public television, a team comes up to New York all the way from Columbia, South Carolina and sets up its camera, alongside the three cameras from the commercial stations.

Enter the gentleman who called the press conference. He is approached by the television interviewer for NBC and told that, ah, unfortunately none of the commercial television cameras can shoot under the present arrangement. Why? Because the public television team is not a member of the relevant union.

THERE ISN'T much to be done under the hectic circumstances, so NBC is asked whether it would make its footage available to the public television camera after the conference, and the answer is an obliging yes. The press conference takes place, the public T.V. men sitting idly, their electric cord ritually disconnected from the wall socket. Later in the day they approach NBC for the promised footage and are told that the charge — for 12 minutes of tape — will be $6,000. They gasp, and NBC grandly reduces the charge to $3,000. The hell with it, the public television people say: they don't have that kind of money.

I was the principal, as you will have guessed, and this column is one part a public act of remorse. I should have told the commercial stations to pull out their own plugs, and then faced only the public television camera with my announcement. Having an over-developed theatrical flair, I would under such circumstances have been tempted solemnly to announce not my plans for the future of Firing Line (the designated subject of the conference), but my intention to run for Mayor of New York. That would have caused the gasps to come from the commercial stations which (in my fantasy) would then have begged me on bended knee to repeat the announcement for their benefit, but I'd have been the soul of obtuseness. Presumably if a non-union camera had been present at Dallas on November 22, 1963, CBS, NBC and ABC would simply have declined to photograph the final moments in the life of the President of the United States.

Here is what I miss in the literature that comes in from the civil libertarians. They are telling us — Dr. Frank Stanton has been most eloquent on the point — that television is every bit as much an instrument of press freedom as the newspaper, and that television newsmen are therefore entitled to exactly the same protection that the newspapermen are entitled to.

IF TELEVISION is no different — insofar as the first amendment is concerned — from the newspapers, then why couldn't a newspaperman's union refuse to permit its representatives to take notes at any press conference also being covered by reporters who are not union members? One would suppose that such an effrontery would not be tolerated. But why is it tolerated in television?

As things now stand, the District Court in New York has ruled in Buckley and Evans vs. AFTRA that the union cannot compel persons who appear on television for the exclusive purpose of giving their own views on public affairs to join. AFTRA was shocked by the verdict and quickly announced that it would appeal. Professor Alexander Bickel of Yale University has accordingly been hired to take my civil liberties away from me. The arguments are being prepared and the legal confrontation will soon be held.

WHAT IS DISMAYING about all of this is the failure of the great journalistic organs — THE NEW YORK TIMES, for instance; CBS and NBC and ABC — to fight for the first amendment at the level at which it is most routinely trampled upon — by the unions. They rise in their wrath only when Dan Ellsberg is to be protected, or when a congressional committee desires to see the cuts that were made in "The Selling of the Pentagon."

WASHINGTON — The basic assumption of the American political system is that parties will fight hard for power, but that there is a limit beyond which the clash of personal and party strife cannot go without impairing the essential unity of the nation. This is the imponderable the Nixon administration forgot.

Mr. Lincoln kept reminding his fellow countrymen that whatever the conflict of the moment, they would have to work with one another when the conflict was over. "We are not enemies but friends," he said. "We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection."

THE BRITISH put the limitations of political skulduggery more simply: "It simply isn't done," they say. Thus it is taken for granted that you don't bug and burglarize your political opponents, try to steal the psychiatric records of your adversaries, forge and burn official documents, manhandle the wives of Cabinet officers to shut them up, hint of such a scandal would have led at once to resignations or to an unchallengeably honest inquiry. The American public's lethargy about Watergate last summer seemed almost a willful refusal to hear bad news about a President it was determined to reelect.

But perhaps there was method in the public mind. For the reaction came when the fundamental danger appeared, the contempt for law: When witnesses were found to have been paid to obstruct justice, when Congress was told it could not demand answers from present or even former White House aides, finally, when the attorney general claimed immunity for all government employees and said Congress had no recourse if it disagreed except to impeach the President.

IN THE END these brazen tactics failed. The press, or some of it, kept digging despite lies and threats. Enough politicians in both parties were faithful to an ideal loftier than their own power. But there

WINONA DAILY NEWS

A page of opinions and ideas

Page 6a, Winona Daily News, Winona, Minnesota, Thursday, May 3, 1973

Is no occasion yet for self-congratulation.

If the larger meaning of Watergate is the importance of respect for law, respect for the American constitutional order, then an even more profound aspect of the problem remains. That is the government's disdain for the rule of law and the Constitution in the making of war.

When Lyndon Johnson slipped the country surreptitiously into war, he did terrible damage to its political fabric. The way was opened for Richard Nixon to repair that, by basing his policy in Indochina on candor with the public and sharing of responsibility with Congress.

Instead, Nixon made presidential power the only touchstone of his policy. To preserve that power in the world arena, as he saw it, he moved furiously and suddenly; he talked of winding down the war and expanded it; he resisted Congress.

The American war goes on in Cambodia now, and without a pretense of constitutional authority. There is no law authorizing the President to bomb Cambodia, no resolution, no treaty. But the President and his men do not care, do not even discuss the problems; they act as if they were above the law.

It is a harder issue to understand than Watergate. Contempt for the idea of democratic control over war and peace is less dramatic, less visual than theft or bribery. And the only people suffering are Cambodians. But in the end the same fundamental interest is at stake: political legitimacy.

There is a notion in this White House that the President, when he is engaged in the conduct of foreign affairs, draws legitimacy from the world outside. The only test is his persuasiveness in the arena.

BUT THE PRESIDENT of the United States, for all his pre-eminence, cannot be a Metternich, operating on the world stage within limits set only by the course of play. His legitimacy comes from within. His strength and his constraint derive in substantial part from American opinion and American law.

Henry Kissinger asked us the other day to have compassion for the Watergate conspirators. Compassion is never out of place in human affairs, but in this case understanding should come first.

The danger is that on Watergate, as on Indochina, this President and his men will be concerned only with the preservation of their power. What they have to learn is that the idea of Government Under Law cannot be compromised. It means fidelity to law at home and abroad, whether convenient or inconvenient, not sometimes but all the time. When that is understood, it will be time for compassion.

New York Times News Service

the staff that entangled the Presidency in the worst political scandal of the century.

The fact that they don't see it this way is only the latest bit of evidence that the President and his men have come to Washington with different assumptions about permissible personal and political action: what is and isn't done, where the line lies between fair and unfair political activity, how far the President can go in waging war without the approval of the Congress, and where a staff officer's first loyalty lies — to his chief or to his oath of office under the constitution.

IF YOU THINK things are mixed up here now as a result of all this moral confusion, imagine where we'd be if the Nixon administration's views on the Congress, the courts and the press had been in operation when the scandal broke. In the last four years, the President and his colleagues have insisted that congressional committees have been too demanding, the courts too liberal, the press too inquisitive, and radio and television too quick with "instant analysis" of presidential activity.

The administration didn't just talk about readjusting the balance of powers in the Republic, but acted to establish the authority of the White House, and suggested and threatened new ways to restore the moral integrity of the people under the guidance of the President and his advisers.

They proposed new legislation under which any government official who passed classified documents to a reporter, or any reporter who received such documents, would be liable to a whopping fine and/or years in the pokey.

Attorney General Kleindienst insisted that nobody who worked for the federal government could be called to Capitol Hill for questioning, even about suspected crimes, if the President forbade them to appear.

Local commercial broadcasters were put on notice that if they kept on distributing the negative news and liberal criticisms of the small but powerful network establishment, without striking a balance of their own, they might lose their licenses. And public broadcasting, funded by government money, has been under relentless pressure to submit to government influence over its programs or risk the loss of government financial support.

FINALLY — AND this in the end may be the most enduring influence of the Nixon administration — the President, who has already appointed four of the nine Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, has promised that he will continue in the next three and a half years to appoint to the bench men of his own judicial philosophy.

Nevertheless, there is the consolation that the Congress, the courts and the press were not working under the Nixon philosophy when the scandals broke. But the problem will remain even with Haldeman and Ehrlichman out.

For the President is still not acting under the unwritten rules that require moderation, candor and cooperation in American political life, and that has been his personal problem from the start.

Most now believe corruption at federal level is 'serious'

While the American people have found many of the detailed disclosures of the Watergate affair to be confusing and even bewildering, one major fall-out is that 81 percent of the public now believes "corruption at the federal level" to be, at the least, "serious," and 52 percent consider it to be "very serious." In an unusual turn of events people by a wide margin rate corruption at the federal level to be worse than that prevailing in local or state government.

Sizable numbers of the public find themselves incapable of yet drawing definitive judgments about the details of the Watergate case. As a businessman in Galveston, Texas, put it, "Every day something new seems to come to light. It's hard to follow, but it looks worse all the time."

HOWEVER, among those who felt capable of making judgments about the Watergate in mid-April, the public response was shaping up heavily negative as regards the role played by key figures in the Administration.

Here are some specific examples of how Watergate looked to the American people in nationwide interviewing conducted in person among 1,537 households between April 18-23rd. The cross section was asked:

"Let me ask you who you think was behind the bugging of Democratic headquarters in the Watergate affair. Do you think (READ LIST) was behind it or not?"

WHO WAS BEHIND WATERGATE?

	Behind	Not Behind	Not Sure
	It	It	It
The Nixon campaign committee	48	12	40
Republican party security men	35	16	49
The White House staff	31	18	51
Former Attorney General John Mitchell	30	14	56
Nixon chief of staff H. R. Haldeman	25	13	62
President Nixon himself	21	39	40

By 4-to-1, 48-12 percent, most now agree with the statement that "the Nixon campaign committee was behind the bugging of Democratic headquarters in the Watergate affair." Back in early October, at the height of the campaign for President, the public felt the same way, but by a much narrower 33-30 percent.

By better than 2-to-1, 30-14 percent, those persons with opinions feel that "former Attorney General John Mitchell was behind" the political spying. Last fall, by a 3-to-2 margin, those who then expressed views on the subject felt that Mitchell was not involved.

By close to 2-to-1, 25-13 percent, those with opinions are also inclined to think that "Nixon chief of staff H. R. Haldeman" was back of the wire-tapping plan. Haldeman was not asked about in earlier surveys.

By 2-to-1, 35-16 percent, those with opinions also say that "Republican party security men" were implicated. Back in October, the public felt the same way by a 33-26 percent margin. This result is interesting and significant, for a number of men who worked in the security apparatus of the Republican campaign have been convicted of conducting the Watergate affair. The key to why more people do not pin the responsibility for Watergate on the security men apparently lies in the growing public conviction that higher-ups did the planning and gave the orders for the bugging, and the security men were simply executing orders given them.

By almost 2-to-1, 31-18 percent, those with opinions believe "the White House staff was behind the bugging." Last fall, most people with views at that time took the opposite position that this was not the case, by 46-19 percent. The key difference between the seriousness of Watergate last fall and today can be found in the growing belief that the White House initiated the political spying and was "behind it."

When the public was asked if "President Nixon himself were behind the bugging of Democratic headquarters in the Watergate affair," by 39-21 percent, almost 2-to-1, most do not think he was responsible. But back in October of last year, a much larger, 5-to-1 majority, 60-12 percent, felt certain Mr. Nixon was not involved in giving the orders for Watergate.

In other questioning, roughly 2-to-1, 39-20 percent, those with opinions label the Watergate investigation of L. Patrick Gray, acting FBI Director, as a "whitewash." The survey was conducted before the subsequent disclosures in the newspapers, alleging that Gray burned key papers which had been deposited in E. Howard Hunt's safe in the White House. In addition, by 39-23 percent, most of those with views on the subject feel that "Gray was wrong to let White House Counsel John Dean look at the FBI files on Watergate."

The earlier position of the Nixon Administration in claiming that White House staff members ought to plead executive privilege and not testify before the U.S. Senate Committee on Watergate was believed to be "wrong" by 53 percent of the public. Mr. Nixon, of course, changed his mind on this subject, and asked that full cooperation be given the Ervin Committee.

By 52-15 percent, a majority of the public also gives the President negative marks on his "handling of the ITT affair." This episode, of course, dealt with the events leading up to the settlement of an anti-trust suit against ITT, the bizarre Dita Beard memorandum, and the subsequent claimed interference by ITT in the national elections of Chile, being investigated by another Senate Committee.

Despite all of these doubts and concern by the public, when asked to say whether "the Watergate episode is a very serious question involving the honesty of the White House," or is "mostly politics," the public opt for the statement that "it is mostly politics," by 48-36 percent. However, the number who feel that way is sharply down from 62 percent who laid the whole business off to "politics" last October.

THE NET EFFECT of these and other recent developments has raised deep concern about the moral climate in Washington. The cross section was asked:

"How serious a problem do you think corruption is on the federal level—very serious, somewhat serious, or not really serious?"

Nixon, God talk

WASHINGTON — Last week-end President Richard Nixon went to Camp David alone, without family or aides. Press Secretary Ron Ziegler denies it, but it has been reliably reported that the President went up the top of the mountain to speak with God.

Art Buchwald

"God, God, Buchwald, why are you doing this to me?"

"Doing what, Richard?"

"The Watergate, the coverage, the grand jury hearings, the Senate investigations. Why me, God?"

"Don't blame me, Richard. I gave you my blessing to win the election, but I didn't tell you to steal it."

"God, I've done everything you told me to do. I ended the war. I defeated poverty. I cleaned the air and the water. I defeated crime in the streets. Surely I deserve a break."

"RICHARD, I tried to warn you that you had sinful people working for you."

"When, God?"

"Just after the Committee to Re-Elect the President was formed. When I saw the people you had selected to head up the committee, I was shocked. We've got a long file on them up here."

"Why didn't you tell me, God?"

"I tried to, but Ehrlichman and Haldeman wouldn't let me talk to you on the phone. They said they'd give you the message I called."

"They never told me, God."

"It figures. Then I sent you a telegram saying it was urgent that you contact me."

"The only telegrams I read during that period were those in support of my bombing North Vietnam."

"Finally, Richard, I made one last effort. I showed up at a prayer meeting one Sunday at the White House and after the sermon I came up to you and said there were men among you who would betray you. Do you know what you did, Richard? You introduced me to Pat and then you gave me a ball point pen."

"I DIDN'T KNOW it was you, God. So many people show up at these prayer meetings. Is that why you're punishing me—because I snubbed you?"

"I'm not punishing you, Richard. But even I can do just so much. If it were merely a simple case of bugging at the Watergate I could probably fix it. But your Administration is involved in the obstruction of justice, the bribing of witnesses, the forging of papers, wiretapping, perjury and using the mails to defraud."

Equity Funding case may hurt St. Paul firm

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The St. Paul Companies, Inc., may be required to pay out up to $1.3 million because of the bankruptcy of Equity Funding Corp., officials told the company's annual meeting.

Equity Funding has been accused of writing millions of dollars of bogus insurance policies on non-existent persons in order to bilk other companies to which the policies were sold.

Carl B. Drake Jr., president, said St. Paul Fire and Marine insured an accounting firm which audited Equity. The insurance, from mid-1968 to mid-1971, covered professional "errors and omissions" liability.

Drake said several lawsuits filed against Wolfson, Weiner Ratoff and Lapin, had unknown merit but policy limits put the maximum potential payout at $1.3 million.

Strike closes Schweigert plant

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — A strike by some 200 meat-cutters has shut down the Schweigert Meat Co. plant in Minneapolis.

William Sampson, state mediator, said the company and Local 653 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers Union met all day Monday but failed to reach agreement. The workers struck Tuesday.

No new meetings are scheduled. The plant manufactures sausage and processed meats.

The founder and first president of Trinity College in Hartford, Conn., was Thomas Church Brownell, then Episcopal Bishop of Connecticut.

Weather casts big shadows over production

WASHINGTON (AP) — Severe weather, including record flooding in much of the Southern cotton area, continues to stall farmers and cast serious shadows over prospects for crop production this year, say Agriculture Department analysts.

"Spring plowing of land intended for corn and soybeans in the north-central states is only about 30 per cent done, compared to about 75 per cent a year earlier," the department said Tuesday in a weekly weather report.

Officials said wet weather delayed Midwestern corn planting last year until about May 15. The bulk of the area's corn then was planted during the last two weeks of May.

"Corn Belt farmers are hoping for six to 10 days of dry weather to permit full scale plowing and planting," the USDA report said. "Corn planting started and advanced to five per cent in Iowa ... (but) was limited to well-drained soils. Minnesota corn acreage is four per cent planted, ahead of normal."

Soybeans usually are planted later than corn, the report noted. That means farmers can be expected to turn first to corn as soon as fields dry. Winter wheat, planted last fall, was reported as making good growth in the southern Great Plains although cool weather has slowed maturing.

HEW extends tribal grant

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has extended a grant of more than $275,000 to the Great Lakes Intertribal Council, state officials said.

The grant has been approved by Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, the state Department of Local Affairs and Development said.

It will fund a Head Start program currently in its eighth year that serves 200 pre-school Indian children at seven Head Start centers in the state.

Senate adopts record school aid program

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Senate adopted a $1.276 billion school aid bill Wednesday, the largest amount ever allocated to local school districts out of state funds.

In other action, the legislature completed action on a Vietnam veterans bonus bill and sent it to the governor, and a Senate committee returned a controversial abortion bill to the floor for action.

The school aid bill goes about $15 million beyond the school aid program submitted by Gov. Wendell Anderson.

Major features would provide bonus aids to school districts with concentrations of low income families and those with fast-growing enrollments.

Another provision would require the state to take over virtually all costs of school busing programs, a boon to many rural districts in northern Minnesota which levy high property taxes to pay for bus fleets.

As usual, the Senate and House will pass different versions with a final draft to be threshed out in conference committee.

The veterans bonus bill authorizes the state to issue $60 million in bonds to provide bonus payments for about 143,000 servicemen who served during the Vietnam era.

Those who served in Vietnam or at nearby support bases will receive up to $600. Those who served elsewhere during the conflict will get up to $300. Former prisoners of war and families of men killed or missing in action will receive $1,000.

The Senate Rules Committee returned to the Senate floor an abortion bill designed to fill the void left by U.S. Supreme Court decisions. The bill would permit abortions after four and one-half months of pregnancy only to save the life or health of the mother.

The measure would restrict the performance of abortions to doctors either in hospitals or licensed "abortion facilities."

This could conflict with the U.S. Supreme Court rulings which have been taken to allow abortions at the choice of the mother up to the sixth month of pregnancy.

A bill to relax the sale of contraceptive devices was defeated by the House. Currently, the devices may be sold only in pharmacies.

Rep. Ray Farley, DFL-St. Paul, said the bill was needed to help cut down the state's soaring venereal disease rate.

Opponents said repeal of the law would make contraceptive devices easily available to minors if they were sold in vending machines.

A joint House-Senate committee reached agreement on the twin-trailer truck bill.

Meadowbrook clinic's abortion service controversial

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — "Mary A." is 20, from Minneapolis, and single. "Jane B." is 35, is from outstate Minnesota and married. She doesn't want her career interrupted. "Betty C." from a Dakota town, has several children and feels another would cause family hardship.

The three are typical of the women and girls who'll have abortions today and Friday at Meadowbrook Women's Clinic. The clinic opened Monday in suburban St. Louis Park and is today performing abortions

Four suburban doctors, incorporators of the business, will do the "procedures," as they refer to abortions. The clinic is the only non-hospital facility of its type in Minnesota, and the largest abortion program in the state.

It also is a highly controversial operation. At opposite extremes in the dispute are Robert McCoy, the husband of a pediatrician, and Marjory Mecklenburg, the wife of an obstetrician-gynecologist.

A former president and minister of the American Humanist Association, McCoy has been a Minnesota leader in abortion liberalization efforts. He quit as chairman of the Abortion Counseling Services of Minnesota, and his job as a steel salesman, to become the salaried administrator of the new clinic.

McCoy sees the clinic as serving a need and as a supplement to hospitals. He said the 1963 Kinsey Report and other studies have shown about 20 per cent of the women who become pregnant want to terminate their pregnancies. There were about 65,000 live births in Minnesota last year, so McCoy calculates that about 15,000 of the women would have preferred abortions.

Mrs. Mecklenburg is president of Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life (MCCL). She says she's distressed and dismayed about "the babies who'll die there" and about the health of pregnant women.

"I don't like to see the medical profession becoming exterminators of life," she adds. Mrs. Mecklenburg hopes the public, and the people of St. Louis Park, will become sufficiently aroused to get the clinic shut down as a "public nuisance."

She says her organization has more than 100 chapters and has grown fantastically since the Supreme Court's January decision liberalizing abortions. About 3,000 more people have joined, bringing the total Minnesota membership to about 15,000.

While many Catholics are represented in MCCL, Mrs. Mecklenburg says people of many religions are members. In northwestern Minnesota, she notes, much of the leadership has come from Lutherans.

Her group, Mrs. Mecklenburg stressed, is only one of several in the state which opposes abortion.

McCoy says he has had some vicious letters and telephone calls from "some of the so-called 'right to life' people." He said they haven't bothered him because he feels his position is right and some of the opponents are "disturbed" and some are "people with their own religious convictions."

No more than six abortions a day are being scheduled at the clinic to begin with, but McCoy expects the figure to increase to about 100 a week within a month. "We want to go slow, and not have a lot of patients right away," he says. "We realize that what we're doing is very important, and we want to do it right the first time."

A big part of the program is counseling. Among the eight counselors hired at the clinic are several persons who had been working part-time with McCoy in Abortion Counseling Services.

"There will be two kinds of counseling," says McCoy. "First, there's pregnancy counseling. A woman comes in. She's pregnant. She wants to know what to do. If she says she wants to become a mother, fine. We refer her to places where she can have her baby."

He estimates one-third of those desiring abortions are married. "The second kind of counseling is for the woman who comes here because she's pregnant and wants an abortion. That counseling will include talking with her to explore her feelings, to see how she feels about the situation, is her husband and family supportive."

School aid distribution formula gets priority

OSHKOSH, Wis. (AP) — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey gave top priority Wednesday to legislative enactment of a revision in Wisconsin's formula for distributing school aid to local school districts.

The new formula recently okayed by the legislature's Joint Finance Committee was endorsed by Lucey in remarks for the state convention of school district administrators.

The governor said "virtually all inequities in the funding process for our public schools" would be eliminated under the revised distribution system.

"There is no element in the 1973-75 budget which I regard as of greater importance to the future of this state—and our nearly one million school children—than the revision of our state school aid formula," he said.

Lucey noted that local school districts would get about $285 million more in state school aids during the next two years than in the current biennium.

"Most importantly, from a practical perspective, over 90 per cent of the school districts in the state—395 out of 436—would receive more state aid under the proposal in 1973-74 than in 1972-73," he added. The proportion of local school costs picked up by the state would be increased from 30 per cent to 40 per cent under the formula endorsed by the Joint Finance Committee.

A limit of $100 per pupil would also be placed on the capital outlay, principle and interest payments to be included in a district's shared costs.

The proposal would reduce the average statewide school tax rate from the 1972-73 level of $18 per $1,000 to an estimated $15.50 in 1973-74 and $15.20 in 1974-75.

Lucey said the limited cost control provision was written into the formula in an effort to help local units resist demands for new expenditures.

"I do not believe that our one-year cost control ties the hands of local administrators," Lucey said. "On the contrary, considering the $285 million increase in state aid which we are recommending, it represents a quite minimal demand from a state government which must be assured that its funds are spent responsibly."

The governor noted the U.S. Supreme Court recently stated there was a need for school financing reform but argued it should be achieved through action of the states and not by the judiciary.

"The approach to school financing which we are advocating carries out this mandate," Lucey said.

Lucey said that, in order for the state budget to be most effective, it should become law before annual local budget meetings are held in July. But he said it would not be easy to sell the budget package to the legislature.

"The few school districts that are adversely affected by a change such as this tend to be far more vocal about their grievances than the many who benefit are about their support," he said.

"We cannot let this reform be thwarted by a handful of antagonists. I would hate to see this tossed aside for a one-time direct payment to taxpayers across the state or some other gimmick."

POW's asking changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senior repatriated U.S. war prisoners have recommended changes in POW doctrines that would allow American fighting men to give more than the traditional name, rank and service number.

A number of proposals were offered to the Joint Chiefs of Staff and other Pentagon leaders in secret briefings during the past few weeks, according to sources close to leaders among the 566 returned U.S. Southeast Asian war prisoners.

The purposes of the recommendations would be to better prepare American fighting men for the ordeal of captivity.

Some former POWs strongly favor drafting guidelines that will tell American fighting men how far they may go in giving enemy captors more than their name, rank, service number and date of birth after being subjected to torture or other severe duress.

"Our men need to be told at what point they may decide to tell the enemy some things. And what they may say, as well as how they can provide false information convincingly," said one former POW who asked to remain anonymous.

A number of returned POWs have acknowledged making propaganda statements, but said they did so only after being beaten and tortured by the North Vietnamese.

Their actions do not seem strictly in accord with the Military Code of Conduct, drawn up after the Korean War produced a small band of U.S. POWs labeled "turncoats" for allegedly cooperating with their North Korean captors.

That 1955 code, reaffirmed by the Defense Department early in the Vietnam war, bans such statements and provides no allowance that some POWs might be forced into making them by being pushed beyond their physical or mental limits.

Zoo construction set next April

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Construction of a Minnesota zoological garden is expected to begin next April following approval by the state legislature of a $23 million bonding bill to build the zoo.

Gov. Wendell Anderson is expected to sign the bill into law soon, and plans call for the facility to be partially open by July 1976, in conjunction with the nation's bicentennial celebration.

The 467-acre site for the zoo, valued at $1.5 million, was donated by Dakota County. It is 15 miles southwest of downtown St. Paul and 17 miles southeast of downtown Minneapolis.

The Senate passed the bill 51-12 Tuesday, and the House accepted the Senate financing plan Wednesday on a vote of 101-27. Earlier, the House has passed a $27.7 million bonding bill by a 99-34 margin.

Proponents of the zoo expect it to develop into a major tourist attraction, with 1.7 million visitors expected in 1977—its first full year of operation.

Adult tickets will be $2, while children under 13 will pay 50 cents.

Wabasha board OK's payment to center

WABASHA, Minn. (Special)—The Wabasha County Board of Commissioners Tuesday approved a $4,160 payment to the Interstate Rehabilitation Center at Red Wing.

Located at the intersection of Highways 61 and 19 in Red Wing, the center offers training under the long-term sheltered employment program. Five area counties support the private, non-profit, non-governmental center.

Board members authorized Sheriff Ed Lager to hire David Bremer, Lake City, as deputy sheriff at a $600 monthly salary. He replaces William Wohlers, who now is a Plainview Police officer.

A resolution was passed authorizing payment of $25 to each of the various organizations that sponsor Memorial Day services.

Five homestead abatements and one regular abatement were approved and the Blue Cross and Blue Shield contracts for county employees were renewed.

Two land use changes were denied: residential to commercial to Everett Marcou, Wabasha, and from agriculture to commercial, Veranice Riley and Pauline Quade, Greenfield Township.

A request for a variance for building construction was approved for Arthur Schultz, Plainview Township.

A proposal by the Wabasha County Planning Commission to delete a section of the county zoning laws and substitute the state Department of Health regulations for mobile home parks and trailers was approved.

Postal service

contracted or discontinued have been money-losing propositions for the postal service, Christianson said.

Christianson said the post office at Barney cost $10,694 to operate last year and it generated $3,217 revenue. The post office branch at Nashua cost $6,881 in the past fiscal year and attracted $1,549.

Christianson reported it is a costly proposition for the postal service to maintain a staffed post office in small communities.

"Officers-in-charge at a fourth-class post office spend perhaps 40 minutes a day working on postal matters and they earn anywhere from $4,000 to $7,000 a year. In addition, they have fringe benefits."

A rural carrier, who normally passes a customer box once daily, can transact any business conducted at a post office. The additional customers will not present a burdensome workload for many rural carriers.

"About 160 rural carriers in North Dakota work less than 20 hours per week and are normally paid commensurate with a fulltime job, plus 12 cents a mile for mileage. It's generally very profitable," Christianson said.

Nashua and Barney, and undoubtedly scores of other communities around the country are waging a battle to retain their current postal service, but for others the showdown was hopeless.

On June 1, Perth, N.D., will be served by a rural branch contract out of Bisbee. Perth joins a rapidly-growing list of rural communities losing their post office.

Wabasha, Winona county boards discuss landfills

Members of the Wabasha County Board of Commissioners met briefly Wednesday with members of the Winona County Board of Commissioners regarding landfill operations.

Wabasha County has not established a landfill and solid waste is being hauled to the Ononoco landfill in Olmsted County.

No action was taken by the two county boards, but information was exchanged and discussion centered about Wabasha County using Winona County landfill facilities.

Winona County has two privately-operated sanitary landfills, one in Stockton Valley and the other near Wilson.

Wabasha County must provide its residents with in-county landfill facilities or contract elsewhere under state regulations that require all changes be closed and all refuse hauled to sanitary landfills after July 1, 1972.

Winona man named SEMRAC chairman

James Hanzel, director of sponsored programs at St. Mary's College, has been elected chairman of the Southeastern Minnesota Regional Arts Council.

Hanzel, who was elected to a three-year term, is formerly from Montgomery, Minn., and holds a master's degree in English from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He has taught English in Minnesota, Illinois and New Jersey high schools as well as at St. Mary's College.

Other members composing the eight-county council are: Harley Flathers, Rochester; Mrs. Arnold Vogel, Red Wing; Mrs. Ione Bell, Austin; James Perkins, Chatfield; Mrs. Lawrence Agerter, Kasson; Mrs. Phil Gartner, Lake City; Mrs. Ronald Thompson, Caledonia; Robert M. Gill, Austin; Leonard Ciulla, Rochester, and Jack Lucas, Winona.

SEMRAC is organized to advance the interest of the creative arts; to develop the influence of the arts in education and to promote and encourage the creative arts in the communities of Southeastern Minnesota. A legislative grant of $25,000 is expected by July 1 to begin funding the SEMRAC program.

According to Dean Myhr, Minnesota Arts Council executive director, SEMRAC is one of the first efforts to regionalize in Minnesota. Regionalism got a start in Minnesota with the Southwest Women's Association for Fine Arts, with headquarters at Southwest State College, Marshall.

"The new regionalism," Myhr explained, "does not negate the possibility that the groups in the region could be funded by the State Arts Council directly. That will happen exactly as it always has. This is just another way the state council can support things that are happening in the region."

AS IN PAST years, the Winona Community Theater is off to a roaring start with numerous tickets being sold for the upcoming season. Committees are working diligently this week to wind up the sale of public tickets for the theater. Dr. George Joyce has done a marvelous job overseeing a large group of hard-working people who have gone through the city selling the season tickets, which are a real bargain. The ticket includes admission to three outstanding shows, plus several children's shows — all to be produced in June, July and August. Talent for the shows is drawn from Winona and surrounding area. Casting for the shows will begin later this month, with all persons interested in acting encouraged to attend try-outs.

WHAT COLOR to choose may be a question you'll be asking if curtains and draperies are a part of your plan for refurbishing your home this spring. The first answer to that question is to look at the other furnishings in the room and to select colors that harmonize with them. The fabric may repeat one or more of the principal colors in the room. Small rooms always seem more spacious if walls and window treatment are the same color, or if one is slightly lighter or darker in value. Window treatments contrasting in color and pattern call attention to the windows and tend to make small rooms seem even smaller. On the other hand, such color contrast may be pleasing in large rooms with regularly-spaced windows of similar size. For rooms that are papered, plain curtains or draperies of the background color of the paper are a good choice. Plain, textured fabrics are usually best also if other furnishings in the room have considerable pattern.

For some homemakers, decorating creates sheer chaos and decisions are difficult. But with slow, intelligent planning, combined with your own personal taste, a harmonious creation can happen with rewarding results. Time is a factor, so don't try and do everything at once. Good luck!

EVERYONE WELCOMES a few simple household hints which contribute to a calm and efficiently managed home. Following are a few which you might find helpful if you can keep them in your mental file.

- Pencil and ball point ink marks can be removed from cloth with hair spray. Spray on spot, rub, then wash as usual.
- Ketchup is an excellent cleaner for brass and copper if you run out of commercial cleaner.
- Crumpled newspaper is good for cleaning mirrors, windows and glass doors. Use any spray cleaner or simply water with a bit of ammonia, and wipe off with the newspaper.
- To scour pans, use a piece of fine emery cloth. The pans scour up bright and there are no scratches.

FOR FRIDAY, MAY 4

Your birthday today: Your growing confidence and willingness to make sensible adjustments save both the day and the year. Learn to pray for guidance. Today's natives include many who relocate in distant places.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Set aside time for review of recent past, particularly where you carry the responsibility for younger people.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): In clearing off the work-week's loose ends keep a tight rein on impulse spending. You will find a better use for cash shortly.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): When you find everybody else intent on working for themselves, take the hint, see if you can do likewise.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Things you do now range from interesting to provocative. Make the most of your upswing, stir people constructively.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): It is all too easy to take a critical attitude. Probably there will be more than one invitation to enter financial deals.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Every extra push toward career, skill improvement or working conditions brings results.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Collect everything coming to you, round up belongings and tools in preparation for opportunity.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be patient in fixing what should be finished or put in working order but isn't. There's more inconvenience if you postpone it.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It's time to gather resources, redeem promises, line up a new budget to make sure you will be comfortable later.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accept jokes and laughter in the spirit intended. Go about consolidating, simplifying your work.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be direct and to the point when you explain. Let nothing drift; make calls, leave nobody waiting or wondering.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Conflicting demands on your time are probable. It is essential that you indicate difficulties to people who must change plans to fit your timing.

Budding harmonica player needs lesson

DEAR ABBY: We are retired. As a child my husband was kicked around, didn't have much education, but Bernie schooled himself and became a very big business success. We have no money problems, but I have a big problem with Bernie.

He has decided that he is a "performer." He has had no musical training, but now he tries to play the mouth organ by just blowing in and drawing out. He doesn't wait to be asked, he carries the mouth organ everywhere, and offers to play. He is simply terrible, but people don't know how to discourage him.

We recently went to a party and Bernie held the floor for 45 minutes a t tempting one song after another. I t w a s dreadful. I was so embarrassed I couldn't hold my head up. Meanwhile he fancies himself a natural talent.

I have a feeling people are looking at us sideways. I asked Bernie not to play in public until he learns a few numbers, but he blew his top and said, "Everyone else thinks I'm great. You're just jealous."

He reminds me of a man we both knew who had a good voice when he was young, but in his later years his efforts to entertain were pitiful. When he died I heard people say, "Well, now we won't have to listen to 'Shanty Town' anymore."

How can I handle this? I love him, but he won't listen to me.

BETTER HALF IN ARIZONA

DEAR BETTER: If you can't enlist Bernie's best friend to tell him the truth about his "talent," and he continues his compulsion to share it, urge him to practice and hope he improves, and try to prevail upon him to make his performances brief.

DEAR ABBY: My husband isn't an alcoholic, but after he's had a few he gets very generous and starts giving away things. (His cufflinks, expensive pens and pencils, even the necktie he is wearing.) He practically forces things on people, some of whom he hardly knows.

Some folks realize it was the booze talking, and the next day they will return whatever he's given them. But most people just keep it.

Is there a solution to this problem?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Yes. Sobriety.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I live on the same street with my in-laws, and since we have the same last name, the Post Office is constantly getting our mail mixed up. When my mother-in-law gets our mail by mistake, she opens it and reads it. Then she brings it over. She knows all our business before we do.

I told my husband to tell his mother to quit opening our mail, but he doesn't want to start a fight. Don't tell us to ask the Post Office to be more careful. They have every excuse in the book from mail sorters who can't read, to addresses they aren't able to make out. Sometimes I think they do it on purpose. What should we do?

NO PRIVACY

DEAR NO: Since your husband doesn't want to irritate his mother, a Post Office box might be a good investment.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Frugal couple on Social Security 'scratch to stay alive'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of stories on how people are living in 1973.)

WESTLAND, Mich. (AP) — Home for Bud and Inez Miron is a back row of the Mohawk Trailer Court in this working-class suburb of Detroit. Theirs is a frugal life.

The Miron, both in their 60s and on Social Security, are used to the simple way.

"We never did run up bills," said Miron. "If we didn't have it, we did without it."

But, still, there is the feeling that things could be better.

"What we're getting isn't really enough," said Miron. "We're scratching to stay alive. I'd like to see Nixon and the other people in Washington try living on Social Security. It's rough."

Until Mrs. Miron began receiving a monthly $110 Social Security check in April, the couple's annual salary was $3,420 or $285 per month — $244 in Social Security and $41 from his pension.

"By the time you pay for rent, food, medicine and utilities, there's hardly anything left," Mrs. Miron said. "And the rising cost of all these things isn't helping matters."

Miron, 67, was forced to relive three years ago as a tool-grinder at a small machinery shop because of illness.

His pension is small because fellow union members had voted against substantial union plans. "Most of them were young fellows, and they knew they weren't going to be there when they were 65," snorted Miron, a stocky, barrel-chested man with a booming voice.

Mrs. Miron's Social Security check, which started when she turned 62 this month, is regarded as a minor windfall. They're worried, however, that the expenses resulting from their multiple medical problems will soon cancel out the additional income.

Miron suffers from emphysema, heart trouble and failing ears and eyes. His wife is a diabetic and has had recurring hernia problems.

Their mobile home is bright and simply furnished, with blonde wood paneling covering the walls and yellow and blue furniture placed neatly around the living room. Pictures of grandchildren adorn the tables and a crucifix hangs on the wall.

The Miron paid off the trailer several years ago, but still pay $63 a month to rent the small plot of ground on which it sits.

Mrs. Miron, a short, plump woman with carefully coiffed red hair, produced last month's rent bill. With electricity and school tax costs added, it totaled $76.

"When we came here, the rent was $35," said Miron.

Before moving into the trailer eight years ago, the Miron had lived in rented houses for the first 36 years of their marriage. "We couldn't rent a home or apartment now," Mrs. Miron said. "It's just too much money."

The Miron eat simply, usually only two meals a day, but their monthly food bill comes to about $120.

Because of her diabetes, Mrs. Miron must have special dietetic foods, which are more costly. "We need meat and we still eat it, but only occasionally and only cheaper cuts like hamburger," she said. "We eat a lot of salads now."

During the summer, Mrs. Mi-ron grows tomatoes and onions in her tiny garden to save money. But she's not sure she'll be able to do it this year because of her health.

Once a month, they treat themselves to dinner out — a $1-a-plate meal sponsored by the city's parks and recreation department.

Their 10-year-old car sits outside the trailer, its fenders splinting and body rusting. The Miron say they don't know what they'd do if it broke down. They have no money to get it repaired or to buy a new one.

"We were going to buy a second car and pay it off before his retirement but he got sick," Mrs. Miron said. "It took us too suddenly."

Asked if they have any savings, Miron retorted, "God, no. We don't have a thing."

But at the same time, they pointed out with pride, they don't have any debts.

They don't have the money to do much now, they added, but it's not much of a hardship because they never did much.

Their entertainment consists primarily of playing cards on Wednesday and Sunday afternoons with other senior citizens. When they're at home, she watches television and he reads.

The Miron also enjoy visiting their married son and daughter and their 11 grandchildren, who live in nearby towns.

Christmas and holidays are spent at their children's homes, but "we can't afford to buy presents for any of them," Mrs. Miron said. "They understand."

The Miron accept with equanimity their tight financial situation, but express some worry when talking about their medical expenses.

At 62, Mrs. Miron is too young for medicare and must spend $21.40 a month for Blue Cross-Blue Shield insurance.

She goes to the doctor twice a month and pays $5 or $15 a visit, depending on the amount of care needed.

She also pays about $10 a month for medicine.

"She was supposed to get a physical recently but she didn't," Miron said. "It cost $90 and we couldn't afford it."

Mrs. Miron is afraid she may have to go to the hospital soon for another hernia operation but she said, "I'm not going to do it unless I'm dragged there. We just can't afford it."

Per gallon

Gas price may hit 50 cents

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The price for a gallon of regular gasoline could break the 50-cent mark by midsummer, the executive director of the Wisconsin Retail Gas Dealers Association said Wednesday.

Joseph Hough of Oshkosh predicted gas shortages will change the habits of auto owners and gas station operators alike.

"This isn't going to be temporary," Hough said. "Simple logic tells you that more and more cars are on the highways and antipollution devices are cutting the gas mileage of automobiles."

Hough said gasoline prices in Chicago area already hover around 45 cents for a gallon of regular gasoline, and run about three to four cents higher for premium brands.

Wisconsin gas prices appear to be averaging about six cents lower than the Chicago rate, he said, but he anticipated the price gap would close.

Hough noted drivers traveling through Wisconsin today will find some dealers, mostly independents, who have simply run out of gasoline.

The independent dealers have been supplied with the excess gasoline of major producers, he said, but such supplies now aren't available to keep the independents afloat.

Hough, whose organization represents about 4,500 dealers, warned in a telephone interview from Oshkosh that consumers may have to hunt for an open service station.

"You put a two gallon or five gallon can in the back of the car and keep it filled with gasoline," he suggests. "Don't let your tank get below a quarter at any time."

The gas dealers spokesman stations will be open fewer hours in a move by owners to cut costs and spread their supplies over a longer period of time.

"They'll be going on bankers' hours, depending on their supplies," he said.

Hough said he thinks the situation will last at least two to five years, while researchers look for alternative sources of energy to power transportation.

"There's got to be a lot of searching right now for alternative sources of fuel," he said. "You can't talk natural gas endlessly."

"It's like the space program — you'll make the breakthroughs as fast as you have to," he added.

Means plans to seek bail again

SIoux FALLS, S.D. (AP) — An attorney for Indian leader Russell Means says that a court hearing will be held Friday on a move to gain Means' release on bond again.

Means was being held in the Minnehaha County jail in Sioux Falls without bond today, pending his scheduled trial July 9 on 11 felony counts stemming from the Feb. 27th occupation of Wounded Knee, S.D.

A new indictment on charges of conspiring to transport firearms illegally across state lines to incite a riot was returned Wednesday by a federal grand jury in Phoenix, Ariz. It names Means and four others.

Means had been free on $25,000 bond, but was arrested last Friday in Los Angeles after U.S. District Court Judge Andrew Bogue issued a warrant for his arrest.

The warrant was issued after Means failed to show up at two hearings on a government motion to revoke his bond.

Judge Bogue also cited irregularities in the bonding procedure.

John Keller of Chamberlain, S.D., one of Means' attorneys, said the hearing Friday would be held before U.S. District Judge Fred Nichol.

Keller said New York attorneys William Kuntzler and Mark Lane would also appear on Means' behalf.

"The constitution says everyone is entitled to bond," Keller said.

Keller said the government contention that Means violated the terms of his bond by failing to follow an itinerary he was required to file with the court was invalid.

"They had a flock of FBI agents following him everywhere he went. They knew where he was every step of the way," Keller said.

Keller said Means attempted to return to Deadwood for the bond revocation hearings, but was unable to obtain a flight reservation.

"He had every intention of being there," Keller said.

McGovern lauds press tenacity in Watergate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George McGovern has applauded "the bravery and tenacity" of those in Congress, the courts and the press "who have given our system a few shining moments of vindication during the Watergate scandal."

The Watergate affair, the South Dakota Democrat said Wednesday, "is not, as the President seemed to imply, typical of the political process. Our politics is better than that. And Watergate is worse than the tactics of any national campaign in my memory or modern times."

Last year's Democratic presidential nominee told the American Society of Newspaper Editors: "I take no satisfaction from this sad affair. Indeed, since the election last November, I have repeatedly refused to respond to press inquiries about Watergate."

"And I take no joy today from the President's difficulties. With him, I hope they will be resolved soon so that he and we can fight out the future on other, better issues."

ASNE President J. Edward Murray of The Detroit Free Press told the convention:

"Watergate looks like President Nixon's Waterloo in his long war with the free press. For the press, certainly, Watergate is a watershed, demonstrating for our generation, at least, the indispensability to the nation ... of unfettered investigative reporting."

McGovern said he knows of "no direct evidence ... to implicate Mr. Nixon in the planning of political espionage or the subsequent obstruction of justice. Like all of you, I hope he was not involved. He denies that he was—and I, for one, must believe him."

Presidential counselor Anne Armstrong told the editors: "Yes, we were wrong on Watergate. This group was very instrumental in proving we were wrong ... You have pursued the Watergate situation in a very productive way under often difficult circumstances."

Now, she said, the press must be "aware of its responsibility to not only report the news but to respect the traditional safeguards of our judicial system which are designed to protect the rights of the accused."

Discuss civil rights

Talks resume at Wounded Knee

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Government negotiators met Indians holding Wounded Knee Wednesday, apparently to discuss civil rights issues in an effort to end the confrontation which began more than nine weeks ago.

Government spokesmen maintained a news blackout concerning negotiations with the American Indian Movement (AIM) occupation forces, who have held federal marshals and FBI personnel at bay since the takeover Feb. 27.

Richard Hellstern, deputy assistant U.S. attorney general, announced the news blackout Tuesday, indicating no questions would be answered concerning the substance of any negotiations or whether talks were being held.

Wednesday Hellstern refused to discuss the meeting between negotiators and occupation leaders. That meeting was confirmed by other government sources and involved Kent Frizzell, chief solicitor for the Department of Interior.

Frizzell had indicated that his role is to lead talks involving social issues, civil rights problems and tribal government questions, while Hellstern is to speak for the government on matters relating to the disarmament of the village.

Frizzell was chief negotiator when an agreement was signed April 5 that was to have ended the siege, but that was never implemented after misunderstandings over specifics in the document developed.

Frizzell had been acting as assistant U.S. attorney general and left following the signing of the agreement to attend hearings concerning his confirmation as Interior Department solicitor.

Hellstern would not comment on the possibility that he too was scheduled to meet with militants Wednesday evening or Thursday, but he did say, "I don't expect the blackout to continue for very much longer."

He said the mother of Lawrence LaMonte visited the village Wednesday to discuss funeral arrangements for her son, slain in an exchange of gunfire between federal positions and Indian bunkers last week.

The burial is scheduled to be inside Wounded Knee, either late Thursday or Friday.

A newsman who visited the perimeter of Wounded Knee said village occupants were increasing their fortifications, replacing more timber around bunkers and adding protection to at least three buildings in the hamlet.

John Sayre, Interior Department spokesman, said marshals reported that the Indians in Wounded Knee were working on a network of tunnels. The occupants had said several weeks ago they were considering a tunnel system as protection against a possible gas attack by the government.

Meanwhile, Gerald Gereau, staff investigator for the Senate Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, said that committee does not intend to hold hearings on the reservation until the village is disarmed.

Gereau said he spoke briefly with committee chairman Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., reporting findings of an investigation he made last week in the Wounded Knee area. He said he talked at length with Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., who heads the subcommittee on Indian affairs. He said he and Abourezk discussed the possibility of providing homes for persons who lost their houses or had them damaged because of the occupation and the problems in getting schools opened again once the confrontation ends.

Gereau said Abourezk agreed that no committee hearings should be scheduled until the armed confrontation is resolved.

Interested persons may attend the workshop in the Federal Courts Building and registrations should be mailed to Anne Weinauer, Minneapolis Institute of Arts, 201 E. 24th St., Minneapolis.

Life dangerous for dope pushers

By GENE KRAMER
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Life has become as dangerous for the international drug traffickers as for drug users, the United States says, thanks to increased cooperation from other countries.

"Throughout the world, governments are cooperating . . . to an unprecedented extent . . . Globally, the United Nations has assumed the leadership which the world expects" in the campaign against illicit narcotics, U.S. delegate Harvey R. Wellman told the social committee of the U.N. Economic and Social Council Wednesday.

Wellman said the United States and cooperating governments arrested more than twice as many traffickers and seized more than twice as much dope in 1972 as in 1971. Arrests totaled 19,000, seized contraband, 800 tons.

Recognition Day honors faculty, staff at CST

Gifts were presented to five retiring members of the staff of the College of Saint Teresa and scrolls awarded for service ranging from 15 to 45 years at the annual Recognition Day program at the college Wednesday.

Faculty, staff, administrators and maintenance and food service personnel attended a Eucharistic celebration in the college chapel at 4:30 p.m., followed by a banquet in Lourdes dining hall.

Dr. Richard Weiland was master of ceremonies for the banquet program at which gifts were presented to the retiring members by Sister Joyce Rowland, college president.

Those retiring are Sister Vioral Kaiser, director of the curriculum laboratory; Miss Josephine Kramer, department of education; Mrs. Margaret Moody, Lourdes Hall switchboard operator; Edmund Muras, carpenter; and Dr. Elisabeth Nydegger, professor of English.

Scrolls were presented to Mrs. Sidonia Altobelli, bakery; Mrs. Virginia Feils, chemistry stockroom; Sister Delphine Klein, campus housekeeping; Sister Johnita Klinger, vice president for student affairs; and Sister Lucilla Schuler, department of history, all for 15 years service.

Also receiving scrolls were Mrs. Winifred Dean, 20 years service; Sister Aelred Seidel, department of biology, 30 years; Sister Eone King, 35 years; Sister David Homan, former member of the history department, 40 years, and Sister Donata Caron, supervisor of laundry services, 45 years.

The scrolls were presented by Sister Joyce.

BRF crime funds get regional OK

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis. (Special) — Two applications from the city of Black River Falls have been approved and a third defeated by the Lower West Central Criminal Justice Planning Council.

Lynn DeLong, police administrator, said one is for $1,722 for special investigative aids and training. It calls for the city's share to be $430.50.

The other is for a crime prevention and education program.

DeLong said the city's original application for $7,980 was defeated, 7 to 6, as the council expressed concern over an expenditure of funds for a video tape system for the city when Jackson County already has such facilities.

The council was presented by Sister Joyce.

Cemetery group sets clean-up evenings

ETTRICK, Wis. (Special) — Members of the Ettrick Cemetery Association will clean up the cemetery the evenings of May 11-12. In case of bad weather, the clean-up evenings will be May 18-19. Vernon Erickson has been engaged as caretaker of the cemetery, succeeding George Amoth.

Officers of the Association are Arthur Runnstrand, president; Ben Erickson, secretary and N. C. Twesme, treasurer.

BRF council fears federal fund cutback

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis. (Special) — Fearing that federal funding of the recreation program now being conducted in Jackson County may be terminated, the Black River Falls City Council Tuesday evening voted unanimously to go on record in favor of continuation of a recreation program.

The council will make a study, possibly contact the Jackson County Board of Commissioners for cooperation, and be able to have funds for a recreation program in the city's 1974 budget.

If the federal funds run out before the end of this year, efforts will be made to continue the program, possibly with the cooperation of townships which are currently taking advantage of the programs being directed by Jack Guy under the federal program.

By approving the report of the city's recreation, health and education committee, the council approved the hiring of Richard Rensink as head lifeguard at the swimming pool this summer.

Members also approved the bid of $12,680 from the McGilivray Lumber Co. for the building of toilet facilities at the swimming pool park. It was the only bid submitted. The project is to be funded with 50 percent from the federal government and 50 percent from the city.

Acting further on recreation, the council voted to pick up an option from the Falls Oil Co. for a parcel of land on Roosevelt Road, which is to be the site of a new boat dock. Federal assistance for that project also has been approved.

FHA water system loan approved for Rollingstone

ROLLINGSTONE, Minn. — A $120,000 loan to the village of Rollingstone was approved Wednesday by the Farmers Home Administration for water system improvements, announced 1st District Rep. Albert H. Quie.

The community will add facilities to the town water system for more adequate fire protection in conjunction with the ongoing installation of a sewer system.

The FMA loan is repayable in 30 years at an interest rate of five percent.

Mayor A. Eugene Smith stated that bids for improvements to the water distribution system will be opened May 14 at 7 p.m.

Work, which was begun last spring, is continuing on the new sewer system.

A sewage disposal plant, which will accommodate 122 rural users, is being built on 18.2 acres of land, acquired from Mrs. Elizabeth Templeton, between Rollingstone and Minnesota City.

The system will employ a lagoon method of disposal, with two primary ponds and a secondary pond being developed. Sewer lines to be constructed in the village will lead to a lift station which will pump effluent into the stabilization ponds.

WSC receives OK for new degree program

Approval of a new bachelor degree program has been received by Winona State College.

Approved by the Higher Education Coordinating Commission (HECC), the program leads to a bachelor of science in education degree in community health education.

The program has been approved at all levels in the Minnesota State College system and now may be implemented at any time.

French nuclear test plans making some political waves

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The next French nuclear tests over the South Pacific, planned for May or June, are making political waves in some countries, but others around the area are keeping quiet for a change.

Tugboats in Australia won't tug French boats. Fishermen in Peru demand that the tests be scrapped.

Private yachts are reported sailing into the test zone. New Zealand is talking of sending a frigate to the site with a cabinet minister aboard and holding France responsible for any damage.

In Britain, a Labor member of Parliament said fallout from last year's French test came down on the descendants of the Bounty mutineers on Pitcairn Island.

Nobel Prize-winner Linus Pauling warned that the tests would increase abnormal births and cancer cases.

In Paris, a member of the Socialist opposition to the Gaullist government asked why the tests could not take place in France if they are as harmless as the government claims.

New Zealand and Australia plan to ask the International Court of Justice at The Hague for an injunction against the tests.

To all the protests, the French government replies firmly that the tests will go ahead as planned. Foreign Minister Michel Jobert said he was astonished at "orchestrated campaigns" to stir up public opinion in Australia and New Zealand.

The French claim the tests at the Mururoa Atoll endanger no one including the populations of the Pacific Basin countries.

The site is 4,000 miles from the Australian and South American coasts and 800 miles southeast of French Tahiti.

A spokesman for Peru's military government said it is convinced the nuclear blasts are damaging to marine life; fishing is a major element in the Peruvian economy. Some Peruvians also fear the explosions will increase the danger of earthquakes.

The nuclear weapon program has always been a matter of national pride in France. Deputy Armed Forces Minister Yann Achille Fould told the National Assembly Wednesday that of all the factors in the government's decision to go ahead with tests this year, the most important was "the necessity to ensure national independence" for France.

Some governments that have been loud opponents of French testing in the past have been quiet so far this year. These include Chile, Bolivia and Colombia, which with Ecuador and Peru made a formal demand in June 1972 for suspension of last year's tests.

Ecuador's foreign ministry issued a statement in April condemning the "atomic explosion" but has made no further protest. Peru's war minister said his government was working for joint action by all countries affected by the tests.

Winona Co. land contour strips reach record

LEWISTON, Minn. — William Sillman, Winona County conservationist, reports the county Soil Conservation Service office this spring has assisted in another record layout of contour strip land.

To date a total of 1,172 acres have been laid out in strips on 34 county farms, with more to be done when the weather eases.

With the striping that was laid out last fall, the total is 1,500 acres, and, when the weather permits, Sillman anticipates a total of about 2,000 acres.

This brings the total county acreage of contour striping to 118,613. Sillman describes contour striping as "not a costly program but one that does a world of good." Although funding under the Rural Environmental Assistance Program is no longer available, personnel from the SCS office provide free assistance in laying out the strips.

Two members of Rushford FFA to get degrees

RUSHFORD, Minn. (Special) — Two members of the Rushford High School Future Farmers of America chapter will receive the State Farmer Degree.

Recipients are Keith Olson and Dale Dunn. Another chapter member, Pam Moran, has been selected as a member of the state FFA band which will play at the state convention to be held Sunday through Wednesday.

The chapter 26-acre corn plot west of Rushford was prepared and planted last week. Also planted were about 1,500 Norway and white pine and blue spruce trees. Members of the tree project are Calvin Colbenson, Glen Feine, Don Ziebell and Keith Olson.

Country side

By KATHY KNUDTSON
Daily News Farm Editor

FARMERS, SPENDING every daylight hour in fields preparing for the growing season ahead, ponder what conditions will prevail during the coming six months.

They know there will be the quirks of the weather. They are certain there will be the threat of frost, and storms with damaging winds and hail, perhaps days of rain keeping them out of the fields and from harvesting.

They wonder about plant diseases. For corn producers in this area, a new corn leaf blight has been identified as Helminthosporium setariae variety maydis by Dr. A. L. Hooker, plant pathologist at the University of Illinois. He identifies it as northern leaf spot.

The symptoms of the disease are similar to southern leaf blight. The leaf blade, leaf sheath, husk and kernels of plants with normal cytoplasm as well as T cytoplasm are affected. Lesions on the ears tend to be a darker black in color than those of the southern corn leaf blight, race T. Spots on the leaves are generally oval and larger than southern corn leaf blight, but smaller than northern corn leaf blight.

Northern leaf spot is airborne. It spores overwinter in ground debris. It is less a threat than southern leaf blight, Hooker says. The chances the new disease will reach epidemic proportions in 1970 are slight.

The organism has to be present in the field. Although the disease has been reported throughout most areas of the corn belt, the problem, if any, will likely be localized in individual fields.

The weather has to cooperate. A high amount of moisture must be present at the proper time for the organism to reproduce. It takes more moisture prolonged for a longer period for the new blight to sporulate than it did for southern corn leaf blight.

The hybrid has to have some susceptibility to the organism, and tests are currently under way to determine how genetic materials commonly used in corn hybrids react.

Farmers are indefatigable in the annual contest with nature. Although they may be beaten in some areas, they are seldom entirely beaten. In fact, they accept the challenges, knowing the great responsibility that is theirs as stewards of the land, providing sustenance for all mankind.

4-H career study said important

WABASHA, Minn. — Choosing a career is one of the most important decisions in anyone's life, says Dennis Crowley, Wabasha County associate agent.

That is why 4-H has a specific project area to assist teenagers in choosing careers which match their interests and abilities, he says.

Often youth explore only a few of the more than 30,000 jobs there are to choose from, which is one reason the 4-H career exploration project is so important. Many youth cut off job opportunities by choosing a career too early, without seriously considering what it involves, Crowley says. Others are influenced by friends and may not go into a field that matches their abilities.

HE OFFERS the following tips for career exploration:

- Know yourself and your capabilities. Ask your counselor or principal for personality tests and listen for feedback from friends, parents and teachers.

- Make sure you complete your high school education. Job opportunities for those without high school diplomas are limited.

- Explore a variety of jobs and careers. Interview people, read about occupations, go on tours and join the 4-H career project.

- Get a part-time job to meet your interests. The self-discipline, cooperation and judgment needed for holding down a part-time job are important qualities to develop.

- Be willing to improve yourself and your skills, not necessarily through formal education, but through continuous education.

- LEARN TO communicate. Course work at school and participation in 4-H and other organizations will help develop communication skills.

- Analyze the role of work in your life. You will pick up attitudes about work at home and at school. For example, someone's attitudes about working women may influence your attitudes. You may need to be selective in deciding your own feelings about work.

Information on the career exploration project may be obtained from the Wabasha County Extension Office.

USDA to keep checking for use of DES

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture will keep checking for residues of the synthetic growth promoter, diethylstilbestrol (DES), as long as use of the newly banned drug remains a possibility.

Producers have been using the implant to increase weight gain of animals. The Food and Drug Administration banned the addition of DES to animal feed as of Jan. 1, and on April 25 as an implant in livestock.

Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz pointed out that while he understood the necessity for the FDA action because of the requirements of the Delaney Amendment, the action will result in increased food costs to the consumer and involves a product which has been used for more efficient food production for 20 years with no known instance of harm to humans.

According to USDA officials, the economic impact of the ban of DES might be reduced if cattle feeders decide to expand the use of other implants approved as growth promoters. These drugs may be just as effective as DES in increasing weights gain but may be more costly, they say.

Disease guard assures good crop of strawberries

ALMA, Wis. — In order to assure a good crop of strawberries from the garden, foliage and fruit diseases should be controlled, says Archie Brovold, Buffalo County extension agent.

The most common diseases are leaf scorch, leaf spot, berry mold and rot, he advises.

About one week after uncovering established plants, begin spraying with a 50 percent wettable powder fungicide called Captan, Brovold says. Apply the spray using a hand-pumped pressure sprayer or a small power sprayer. The applications should be made at 10-day intervals until the first berries start to ripen.

New, nonbearing plantings of June berries should also be sprayed to prevent build-up of disease infections during the first year.

Do not overfertilize a bearing planting with nitrogen as the resulting heavy canopy of foliage makes the berries more susceptible to mold and rot infections due to lack of sunlight, he warns.

Persons wishing additional information should contact local extension offices and ask for the bulletin on strawberries.

Slaughtered cattle on the rise in state

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Cattle slaughtered during March 1973 at commercial plants in Minnesota totaled 103,000 head, 20 percent less than a year earlier but 4 percent more than a month earlier, according to the Crop and Livestock Reporting Service of the Minnesota and U.S. Departments of Agriculture.

January-March cattle slaughter totaled 328,000 head, down 11 percent from the same months in 1972.

Minnesota's calf slaughter in March was 700 head compared to 1,000 head during March 1972 and 700 in February 1973. The hog kill in March totaled 466,000 head, a decrease of 5 percent from a year ago but up 19 percent from last month.

January-March hog slaughter of 1,305,000 head was down 1 percent from the same months in 1972. Sheep and lambs slaughtered in the state's commercial plants during March 1973 totaled 15,500 head compared with 21,200 in March 1972 and 19,500 head the previous month.

Fairgrounds keep busy throughout the off-season

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Several prefair events have been scheduled on the Minnesota State Fairgrounds.

They include the Future Farmers of America livestock judging contest May 7; Minnesota Firefighters School May 9-11; Loretta Lynn Rodeo, May 31-June 3; Land O'Lakes Dog Show, June 10; Minnesota Arabian Horse Show, June 15-17; 4-H Junior Leadership Conference, June 19-20; and Billy Graham crusade, July 13-22.

Last year, 243,977 persons used the exposition grounds during the fair's off-season. In addition, during the winter months, exhibit buildings and barns were used for storage of more than 1,000 pieces of recreation equipment, such as boats and campers.

Upstate New York farmer learns odd habits of bison

By HAROLD FABER

STORMVILLE, N.Y. — Charles and Julia Tucker have a home where the buffalo roam only 90 minutes from Times Square in upstate New York.

Driving an old red pickup truck through the range on which the buffalo graze, Tucker came close to his herd of 37 animals the other day. There, in front of the truck was Big Daddy, a tough old bull, who wouldn't budge.

"He wouldn't back up for a freight train," Tucker said a little proudly. "He's quick as lightning and unpredictable."

TUCKER POINTED to the one-track freight line that runs close to the border of his farm. "See that?" he said. "Big Daddy and some of the other buffalo got on the track and stopped the trains a while ago. The railroad had to build some strong fences around the tracks."

The 52-year-old Tucker is one of the few New York members of the National Buffalo Association, which was founded in 1866 and is now booming. It has 300 members, half of whom are active in raising buffalo, owning a total of 20,000. There are about 5,000 more bison in state and national reservations around the country and 15,000 in Canada, according to the association. They are considered a national resource by many, a tourist attraction by some and a source of meat for a few.

Tucker has become a practical expert on the habits of bison since he bought his first animal in 1965, but he concedes he still has a lot to learn about them.

"IF YOU DON'T bother them, they won't bother you," he said. "But don't get out and walk among them unless you can run fast. They're liable to hook you with their horns."

Tucker drove around Big Daddy and farther into the 1,000-acre farm that he owns with his two uncles, C. Tremain Jackson, 71, and Henry H. Jackson, 74. His family has owned the farm since 1743.

He stopped the truck in the middle of his breeder cattle.

Durand FFA wins first in dairy cattle judgings

DURAND, Wis. — The Durand Unified Schools chapter of the Future Farmers of America is first-place winner in the 43rd national dairy cattle judging contest sponsored by Hoard's Dairyman, national dairy farm magazine.

With an average score of 473.4 out of a possible 500, the Durand and FFA members ranked first among 1,841 FFA chapters from 40 states and Canada. Their advisers are Orland Olson and William Turner.

The contest involves judging five classes of dairy cattle pictured in Hoard's Dairyman magazine. Nationally known dairy cattle judges make the official placings and the contestants are graded accordingly.

Most of the 80 members of the Durand chapter live and work on family farms. The chapter owns and manages a 120-acre farm and, for the past two years, the chapter's dairy judging team has received a superior rating at the state contest. As a result of active involvement in FFA activities, the chapter has earned a superior chapter award.

"Here's Tessie," he said, pointing to a small bison.

"Tessie associates only with cows and people, not with other buffalo," he explained.

"Kiss me," he said. Tessie licked his face.

Tessie was born four years ago in a twin birth, a rare occurrence among bison, according to Tucker. Her mother took one of the calves and went off, presumably leaving Tessie to die.

Tucker fed the calf with a bottle and she flourished.

"She considers me to be her mother," Tucker said.

Tucker got involved with bison in 1965, when troubled by a labor shortage on his dairy farm and eager to go into something else, he heard about a buffalo sale at a ranch in South Dakota. He called, asked the price and made a bid of $325 on some cows and $350 on a bull. That night he got a return phone call informing him that he was the owner of four buffalo.

Over the years Tucker bought some more and raised others with the help of a hired man, Samuel Williams.

"Last summer was great and I thought I had it made when nine calves were born," Tucker said. "But in the fall, four died."

SIGHTSEERS ARE a problem. The Tuckers conduct tours for school children, but motorists sometimes clog Stormville Road and Route 216 that border their farm, looking for the buffalo.

But for all the problems, Tucker thinks that buffalo are easier to raise than milk cows and certainly more enjoyable. "I have room for them to graze," he said. "They eat grass most of the year so I feed them hay in the winter only. You don't have to shelter them, not even in the snow, and they take care of themselves."

Tucker sells live animals to custard-stand owners, to game parks and to landowners who just like the idea of having a buffalo on their property.

Tucker believes that buffalo and its products are good for you. The meat is delicious, a little similar to beef, perhaps a bit more gamey, but more tender and low in fat and cholesterol, he said.

Lower soybean stocks tighten market supply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says the recent report of lowered soybean stocks has increased uncertainty over the degree of tightness in soybean supplies during the remainder of this marketing year.

Total soybean stocks, reported at 506 million bushels, were lower than would be expected on the basis of reported crush and exports during September 1972-March 1973.

However, the department said soybeans in transit generally are not covered in the stocks survey. The heavy movement of soybeans — including soybeans destined for seed use — around April 1 contributed to the uncertainty.

The department said that because of continuing rains and flooding, the quantity needed for planting the 1973 crop is larger than previously anticipated. It said a minimal carryover a little less than the previously estimated 60 million bushels is implied by these data—down from the 72 million bushels carried over on September 1, 1972.

It said prospective soybean oil exports for this season would be about 1.3 billion pounds, down 200 million pounds from earlier estimates.

Whalers take 2-0 lead in WHA playoffs

WINNIPEG (AP) — John French sat in the dressing room with a smile on his face and said he was "lucky and good" to score the winning goal Wednesday night as the New England Whalers whipped the Winnipeg Jets 7-4.

The victory gave the Whalers a 2-0 lead in the best-of-7 World Hockey Association final series for the World Trophy. The third game will be played here tonight.

French scored two goals in the final 20 minutes as the Whalers rallied for five straight goals in the third period.

"We were confident we could come back after that second period," French said. "We figured if we got a quick one we'd have them."

Defenseman Jim Dorey started the third-period eruption, finishing off a good passing play with Tom Williams and Tom Webster at 2:10. Brit Selby tied the score at 4-4, 49 seconds later.

Dorey teamed with Williams and Webster and passed the Jets dizzy before Selby slapped the puck into the open net behind a baffled Ernie Wakely, the Winnipeg goalie.

Then French scored his first goal of the playoffs, deflecting a low slapshot into the top corner.

"I was lucky and good on that goal. I was in the right spot and Ricky (Ley) hit my stick with his shot."

John Cuniff made it 6-4 before French completed the scoring into an empty net.

Cotter netmen rip Logan 8-1

LA CROSSE, Wis. — Forced to play amidst a light drizzle and temperatures in the low 40's, Cotter High's tennis team still managed to dispose of La Crosse Logan 8-1 here Wednesday afternoon.

But the Ramblers' No. 1 singles entrant, freshman Paul Van Deine, suffered his second loss of the season when he dropped a 10-6 pro set with Logan's top player, Robin Roberts. The former's only setback prior to Wednesday was to Meg Horan of Rochester Lourdes.

In No. 2 singles, Paul Wadden took the measure of Logan's Brian Baldwin 10-5, Barb Van Deine whipped Brian Larson 10-4, Rich Pelowski knocked off Jon Erickson 10-5, Dave Williamson outlasted Mike Sella 10-8 and Frank Blesanz trimmed Joe Hartley 10-6.

In a doubles match that lasted for over an hour, the brother-sister combination of Paul and Barb Van Deine earned a 17-15 victory over Roberts and Larson. Then Wadden and Pelowski nipped Baldwin and Erickson 12-10 and Williamson and Blesanz got by Sella and Hartley 10-8.

Cotter, now 2-3 on the season, will return to La Crosse Monday to take on Aquinas.

Cuzzo retiring from pro football

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Quarterback Gary Cuzzo of the St. Louis Cardinals, veteran of 10 years in the National Football League, says he is retiring from pro football.

Cuzzo told the St. Paul Pioneer Press Wednesday night he had been going to college for 14 years, including 10 in graduate school, and "I've just decided it's time to settle down and live a normal life."

Cuzzo was at his home in Clarendon Hills, Ill., and was interviewed over the telephone.

He will be graduated from Loyola University in Chicago as an orthodontist. He previously earned his D.D.S. degree from the University of Tennessee while studying in dental school there in the off-season during his football career.

"I kind of hate to leave the game," said Cuzzo, a former player for the Minnesota Vikings. "I really liked the game itself...but it's time to get started in my profession. That's something I really love, too." Cuzzo played out his option with the Vikings in 1971 and was traded to the Cardinals for wide receiver John Gilliam and a draft choice prior to the 1972 season.

As a Viking, Cuzzo's brightest hours were in 1970 when he took over following the departure of quarterback Joe Kapp. Cuzzo led Minnesota to a 12-2 record, but divided the quarterback chores with Norm Snead and Bob Lee in 1971.

As a Minnesota foe, Cuzzo twice was instrumental in handing the Vikings crushing setbacks. On Nov. 14, 1965, he started for injured John Unitas of the Colts and threw five touchdown passes in a 41-21 romp. The next day, Norm Van Brocklin quit as Viking coach. Last year while with St. Louis, Cuzzo quarterbacked the Cardinals to a 19-17 upset over Minnesota.

Cuzzo played four years at Baltimore, one year at New Orleans, four years at Minnesota and last year at St. Louis.

It has been guessed that his St. Louis contract paid him $90,000 a year.

Cuzzo said he had been thinking about retiring from football for the past three months. "Two weeks ago," he added, "I wrote to the Cardinals and told them I was retiring."

He said he expects to practice orthodontics either in Minneapolis, the Minneapolis suburb of Edina or on the East Coast.

Black Hawks' injuries mount

CHICAGO (AP) — That home ice advantage the Chicago Black Hawks were eyeing in an effort to get back into contention in their seemingly futile battle for the Stanley Cup is gradually diminishing through mounting injuries.

Down 2-0 to the Montreal Canadiens in the best-of-7 series, the Hawks learned Wednesday that defenseman Doug Jarrett has a broken rib and will be out for the remainder of the playoff.

Adding Jarrett to the casualty list which claimed defenseman Keith Magnuson in the New York series and center

Stan Mikita in the first game of the finals against Montreal, the Hawks appear to have little chance of detouring the Canadiens.

In fact, it seems they'll be hard pressed from preventing a four-game sweep in games Thursday night and Sunday afternoon.

Jarrett became entangled with Montreal's Rejean Houle in the first period of Tuesday night's 4-1 loss to the Canadiens.

Initially it was thought that Jarrett had only injured his rib cage, but further examinations showed a fracture. With Magnuson and Jarrett out, the Hawks were forced to return John Marks to defense Tuesday night and now will dress defenseman Len Frig, up from Dallas, for Thursday night's game.

Even more alarming to the Hawks' cause is Mikita's situation. The plucky center suffered a gash on the middle finger of his right hand in the third period of Sunday's game when he was checked by Jim Roberts.

The finger was so swollen that Mikita could hardly get the hand into his glove. With a healthy team, the Hawks were underdogs to the Canadiens who lost only 10 games during the regular season.

Deron Johnson dealt to A's

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "If you got to go, it's good to go with a team that has a chance to win it all," said Deron Johnson.

The 33-year-old Johnson was dealt by the Philadelphia Phillies to the Oakland Athletics Wednesday for rookie third baseman Jack Bastable.

"It's a break for me," said Johnson, after learning he would join the A's, last year's World Series champions.

Johnson, who in 10 years as a major league player has been with the New York Yankees, Kansas City A's, Cincinnati, Atlanta and Philadelphia, expects a chance to make the Oakland team, rather than be used only as a designated hitter.

"They talked to me about being a designated hitter, but said they wanted to see me play first base," Johnson said.

Johnson was hitting .167 with one home run and five runs batted in in 12 games this season for the Phillies. He was sidelined most of last season with a nerve ailment in his left foot. In 1971, however, he hit 34 home runs and had 95 RBI.

Warrior gals stop Luther tennis squad

Driven indoors by the inclement weather, Winona State's women's tennis team posted a 10-2 triumph over Luther College here Wednesday afternoon.

In singles action, Karen Erickson disposed of Kristin Storvick 6-4, 6-3, Anne Coates shrugged off Ann Wulfsberg 6-1, 6-2, Gail Whipple handled Winn Pence 6-4, 6-2, Karen Dahl whipped Peggy Hein 6-2, 6-1, Jo McDonald got by Lenore Fransen 6-2, 7-5, Deb Lund took the measure of Cheryl Westrom 6-0, 6-2 and Cheri Craven defeated Sharon Austin 6-2, 7-5.

Miss Dahl and Miss Whipple combined to win their doubles match 6-1, 6-4. Miss Lund and Nancy Pearson won a pro set 10-5 and Meg Sanders and Mary Owens teamed up to earn 6-4, 6-2 victories.

Saturday Winona will travel to Minneapolis to compete in the University of Minnesota Invitational.

Plante signs 10-year pact

QUEBEC (AP) — Jacques Plante won't be doing any more roaming—the Quebec Nordiques of the World Hockey Association have made certain of that.

The 44-year-old Plante, who played for five National Hockey League teams and generally is credited with introducing the free-wheeling style of play to the goalie's position, signed a 10-year contract Wednesday as coach and general manager of the Nordiques.

Plante, who threw his body in front of pucks for 18 seasons, perhaps is best remembered for the revolutionary changes he introduced. He was the first goalie to wear a face mask on a regular basis and the first to leave the protection of his goal crease to control loose pucks.

He replaces Maurice Pilon as coach and Marius Fortier as general manager.

Kingsriter named fellowship winner

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Doug Kingsriter of the University of Minnesota has been named the Fellowship of Christian Athletes' 1973 national collegiate athlete of the year.

Kingsriter, an All-American tight end for the 1971 Gophers, will receive the award May 17 at a banquet in Kansas City.

The Minnesota Vikings drafted Kingsriter in the sixth round after his 1972 season with the Gophers.

Golden Valley hires 2 coaches

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Golden Valley Lutheran College has hired two coaches—Rick Gautsch, University of Minnesota wrestler, and Dick Thompson, Minneapolis North High School basketball coach.

Athletic Director Bill Lundquist said Wednesday both would assume duties next fall. Gautsch, 22, was fourth in the Big Ten wrestling tournament this year. Thompson, 34, has a 12-4-23 record at North High the past seven years.

Off-sale beer license OKed for grocery store

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis. (Special) — The Black River Falls City Council Tuesday night, May 1 voted granting the A & P Store an off-sale beer license, opened bids on curb and gutter installations and authorized creation of a personnel policy.

When bids were opened on curb, gutter and sidewalk installations the J. J. Farmer Brothers of Tomah were apparent low bidders with $7,976.50. Second lowest bidder was the Smith Sand and Gravel Company of Black River Falls. The Williams Construction Company of La Crosse submitted a bid of $10,403.35 and the York Ready Mix Company one of $8,056.55. City Engineer Dan Klumpner said he would study the bids and make a recommendation to the Public Works Committee meeting May 15.

The council authorized Lynn DeLong, Police Administrator, to draw up a city personnel policy to spell out the rights and duties of all city employees except the members of the Police Department who are subject to collective bargaining procedures.

The Utility Commission reported work on establishing a policy to cover possible cable television installations.

Second Ward Alderman Harold Olson reported the city has $500 earmarked for a tree and shrub planting project along Pierce Street. Rollin Darst of the Toddle Inn Nursery will inspect the area to make recommendations.

New Fourth Ward Alderman William Davis again mentioned his interest in having the city draft an ordinance which would require all future city employees to live within the city.

The next meeting of the city council will be June 5.

Multiple Listing Service IS PROPERTY SELLING?

That is a question we are asked almost every day. Frankly, the way a property moves when it is offered for sale depends a lot on how it is handled. For this reason when you are BUYING or SELLING we suggest you give us a call.
